Son Becomes King As Carol Abdicates

DICTATORSHIP OUSTS RULER OF RUMANIANS

Royal Yacht Carries Fallen Monarch and Friend Magda on Exile Flight.

MICHAEL TAKES OVER

Iron Guard Roams Streets of Bucharest Spreading Terror to People.

(By Associated Press)

BUCHAREST—King Carol II, yielding to demands of Rumania's new military dictatorship and riotous clamor in the streets, abdicated today in favor of his 18-year-old son, Michael, and fled into exile aboard the royal yacht.

Reported with him was red-haired Magda Lupescu, his associate more than a decade ago when he relinquished his right of succession to the throne for gay Paris exile and let Prince Michael reign as child monarch under a regency.

The destination of the royal yacht which sailed into the Black sea from Constanta was not known. The king boarded it after secret departure from Bucharest by special train

Back of him in troubled, dismembered Rumania Carol left his son as the front of an Axis-aligned military dictatorship which already had started a wholesale roundup of important political figures in Carol's decade of power.

Prince Michael immediately was proclaimed king-successor to his father, but only to be a figure-head ruler under stern General Ion Antonescu, to whom Carol had first yielded his kingly powers and at whose demand he finally gave up the throne.

Carol was believed by some to be enroute to Egypt, but there was no confirmation of this, and other observers supposed he might seek exile more distant from his dismembered Balkan realm.

OLD TANKS GO

Army Studies Transfer of Equipment to Canada.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The United States prepared today to ship military supplies, including World war tanks, to Canada.

This was revealed by Mayor Florello H. LeGuardia of New York, co-chairman of the joint Canadian-American defense board, and Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

Marshall said that the army is "favorably considering" immediate sale of several hundred old six and 30 ton tanks to Canada. The tanks, capable of traveling only about three miles per hour, Marshall said, are considered so obsolete that congress forbade the army to spend more money to operate them seven years ago.

JAPS MOVE IN

French Give Landing Leave To 12,000 Troops.

LONDON — (NS) — A Reuters (British) dispatch from Chungking today reported that French Indo-China had agreed to permit the landing of 12,000 Japanese troops at three points along the coast of the China sea.

This report, stated to have emanated from well-informed sources, follows upon previous reports that Indo-China rejected a Japanese ultimatum demanding the right of passage for troops to the China war zones.

PARALYSIS DEATH

Columbus Boy Dies, Bringing State Total to 15.

COLUMBUS — (NS) — Infantile paralysis today had claimed its first Columbus victim with the death of nine-year-old Thomas Justus, who died in University hospital's iron lung.

The death of the boy brought to 15 the number of deaths in the state since June 10. Since that time 163 cases have been reported, 63 of which are still active.

Sixty-Day Delay Jolts House Backers of Draft

FINAL PASSAGE SEEN

Fish Amendment to Try Volunteer System Wins, 185-155.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The house refused twice today to change the registration age limit of 21 to 44, inclusive, in the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)—President Roosevelt today put additional pressure on congress for quick passage of the pending conscription law, saying that time flies and that the draft is essential to U. S. defense plans.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Rudely jolted by their temporary failure to block a postponement of the draft, house conscription leaders rallied their surprised forces today to stave off more moves for the modification of the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military service bill.

The unexpected reversal occurred late yesterday when the house voted, 185 to 155, to defer the inauguration of conscription for 60 days while an effort was made to obtain 400,000 recruits for the army by one-year voluntary enlistments

Despite the setback, those in the conscription ranks insisted the Burke-Wadsworth bill was in no danger of eventual defeat, indications were that conscription leaders might seek to reverse yesterday's vote before the final roll call.

The occasion for the defeat was an amendment by Rep. Fish (R-NY)—the first of the many proposed modifications of the bill to be voted on. It would authorize the president to issue a call as soon as possible for 400,000 volunteers between the ages of 18 and 35. The recruits would be inducted into the army or national guard upon enlistment.

If 400,000 recruits had not been obtained at the end of 60 days, conscription would become operative to raise what-

WPA TO CHECK RED PETITIONS

Kelly Says Investigator To Be Sent to Mansfield To Interview Signers.

Signatures on Communist petitions in Richland county and other sections of Ohio were being checked today against WPA rolls, and the possibility loomed that WPA workers who knowingly signed the petitions may face prosecution for violation of their citizenship oath.

Although it was learned that a number of Richland county WPA workers signed the petitions, J. L. Kelly, Sixth district WPA director, said no names will be released until officials have had a chance to go over the employment lists

He said signers of the petitions who are on WPA will be interviewed by an investigator who will be sent to Mansfield soon to take statements from them.

"What the workers have to say about whether they were duped into signing the petitions will determine WPA's policy for action," Kelly explained. There will be no "arbitrary dismissals," he added.

Kelly told The News-Journal that if the WPA investigation

PLANE EXPERTS GIVE TESTIMONY

CAA Calls 65 Witnesses For Crash Investigation.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The civil aeronautics board assembled approximately 65 witnesses today, many of them experts in various phases of aviation, in an effort to fix the cause for the nation's greatest commercial plane disaster.

Among those scheduled to testify were executives of Pennsylvania-Central airlines, owners of the deluxe $129,000 Douglas airliner which crashed near Lovettsville, Va., last Saturday, carrying Senator Lundeen (FL-Minn.) and 24 others to their deaths.

HUDSON, O. —(AP)—Fire departments from Northfield, Macedonia, Twinsburg, Cuyahoga Falls and Stow were summoned today to help the Hudson department extinguish a blaze which threatened the Hudson business district.

THREE CAPTURED

Eight Arkansas Convicts Still Remain at Liberty.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. —(AP)— Capture of three more of the 36 convicts whose Labor day break from the Cummins prison farm has cost six lives left only eight at liberty today.

The three were captured without resistance last night at McGehee.

Meanwhile officers of three states searched for the others.

A motorist's report last night that a roughly dressed man brandishing a shotgun had tried to stop him on a highway three miles south of Pine Bluff, Ark., sent Jefferson county officers and state police into swampland near there.

Officers attempted to close in on another convict reported seen near Natchez, Miss., and north Louisiana possemen were on the alert for fugitives in that section.

WHITE NAMED

Bolting Democrats Picked for Willkie Advisors.

NEW YORK—(NS)—Other similar appointments today were expected to follow the naming of former Democratic Governor George White of Ohio as the first of 48 state advisory chairmen to aid the national committee of Democrats for Willkie.

White, governor of Ohio from 1930 to 1934, recently bolted the Democratic party to support Wendell L. Willkie.

Carol Out, Son Now Rules

Abdication of King Carol of Rumania, (right,) and accession to the throne of Crown Prince Michael (left) reversed the position of king and subject which obtained when the father and son picture above was taken.

Snatched From Sleep To Take Throne of Rumania

Prince Michael Greeted By Abdicating Carol With Tears In Eyes, and Blessings for Future.

(By International News Service)

BUCHAREST—Rumania's new king, 18-year-old Michael, was snatched from a sound sleep at 6 a. m today to find himself once more monarch of his native land.

The new king, who as a boy ruled briefly under a regency until Carol took possession of the throne in 1930, was awakened by court functionaries who conducted him to the room of his father, the abdicating Carol.

The latter greeted his son with this solemn statement:

"You are again king of Rumania."

Then Carol, weary after a night of conferences with Rumania's new "leader of the state," Gen. Ion Antonescu, embraced and kissed his son with tears in his eyes.

Subsequently Michael received Antonescu, Patriarch Nicodemus, high priest of Rumania and Chief Justice Radulescu of the supreme court and took the oath of his new office.

As a child, Michael was the first king in history to precede his father on the same throne.

Michael first ascended the Rumanian throne in 1927, succeeding his grandfather, King Ferdinand, whose death was accompanied by abrogation of Carol's

TAKE WARSHIPS

British Sailors Raise Union Jack Over Destroyers.

BOSTON — (NS) — The Union Jack today waved from the masts of three of the 50 American World war destroyers given to Great Britain in return for naval and air base leases on British possessions in the western hemisphere.

An attache at the Boston navy yard disclosed that the 1200-ton fighters were transferred to British seamen at sea on the neutrality zone boundary line off Nova Scotia

The American sailors, it was reported, were removed to the tender Denebola, which accompanied the Hale, the Aaron Ward and the Abel P. Upshur.

Five other destroyers were enroute for the secret rendezvous with the royal navy. They were the Crowinshield, Herndon, Welles, W. V. Wood and Buchanan. Three more destroyers were at the navy yard for a check-up.

Spanked 5-Month-Old Son For Crying Too Much.

AKRON — (AP) — Gordon Hodgecoth, 20, who a month ago spanked his five-month-old son because he cried today was under a three months jail sentence.

Common Pleas Judge Oscar Hunsicker sentenced Hodgecoth and his wife Frances, 19, to a year in jail, but reduced the husband's sentence and suspended the wife's on condition they give up the baby. The baby, whose leg was broken, is recovering in Children's hospital.

South Boulevards Residents Seek To Keep Village 'Dry'

Residents of South Boulevards, new village south of Mansfield, had filed a local option petition today with the Richland county board of elections, seeking a vote on the wet and dry issue in the village at the Nov. 5 election.

The petition, bearing 41 signatures, requests a vote on the sale of any intoxicating liquor in the village, sale of wine by the package for sale on or off the premises where sold, sale of spirituous liquors by the glass, and the establishment of a state liquor store for the sale of intoxicating liquor by the package for consumption off the premises where sold.

Election board officials said they believed the petition had enough signatures to put the liquor sale question on the ballot, provided all the signers are legal voters in the village.

A state law requires that 15 per cent of the electors who voted for governor at the last general election sign the petition. In this case, however, the village was not in existence at the time of the state election two years ago and the

$290,000 BOND ISSUE UP FOR MADISON VOTE

Part of Washington Township Will Also Ballot on Plan to Enlarge Schools.

TELLS OF PROPOSALS

Superintendent Says Madison High, Woodville and East Mansfield to Benefit.

The board of education of Madison township will submit to the voters of Madison and part of Washington townships at the Nov 5 election a $290,000 bond issue to finance improvements in the district school system.

Submission of the issue on the ballot was authorized by the state board of tax appeals today.

According to Olan LaRue, superintendent of Madison schools, proceeds from the bond issue are to be used for extensive improvements in the entire Madison school district to provide additional facilities for increased enrollment.

Proposed are the addition of 12 new classrooms at Madison high school, the construction of a new six-room building at Woodville and a new eight-room structure at Lincoln Heights and improvements at East Mansfield school

He said the improvements at Madison high would also include the construction of a new auditorium and gymnasium as well as needed repairs on other parts of the building.

More Space Necessary.

LaRue pointed out that "a tremendous increased enrollment" the past two years has made it necessary to provide the additional classrooms.

Enrollment of the four schools which totaled 731 in 1938 was boosted to 841 at the beginning of this year's term, he declared.

It was pointed out that the county board of education several weeks ago authorized the merger of most of Washington township schools with Madison township, but that the pupils could not be transferred to the Madison schools until facilities are provided.

Turned down by WPA because of projects already on file in the county, the construction will have to be done under contract, the superintendent explained.

Hospital's Group Insurance Plan Goes Into Effect

A group hospitalization insurance plan, adopted by Mansfield General hospital trustees two weeks ago, was placed in effect today.

Final preparations for operating the plan were being completed by hospital officials and trustees today.

Under the plan, individual subscribers would pay 60 cents a month into a fund and, in case of illness, be entitled to 21 days ward service in General hospital free of charge. For semi-private service, 75 cents a month will be the amount subscribed

A husband and wife may get ward service protection for $1.10 a month and semi-private service for $1.40

An entire family, which includes the husband, wife, and unmarried dependent children less than 19 years old and over one year, may receive ward service for $1.50 and semi-private service for $1.90 per month. Each member of the family would be entitled to 21 days free of charge in the event of sickness.

The plan is sponsored by the Hospital Service association and is a non-profit corporation approved by the American Hospital association, incorporated under the laws of Ohio, and under the supervision of the Ohio department of insurance.

Enrolling will be done at the place of employment with the consent of the employer. A group will be accepted from any organization employing ten or more persons

More than 5,600,000 Americans have already enrolled in the plan throughout the country. In Cleveland alone 368,000 residents have subscribed

Mansfield is among the first of the smaller cities to adopt the plan

Waves of Nazi Planes Attack London Again

Masses of RAF Fighters Rise To Battle Invaders and Defend Airports; City Has Night-Long Alarm; Shelter and Hospital Hit By Bombs.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Coming wave on wave in formations too thick to count, Adolf Hitler's warplanes today launched mightier assaults than ever against Britain after the worst night of the war, and engaged in a series of non-stop battles all over the London area and southeastern England.

To meet the onslaught, masses of British fighters took to the skies, setting upon at least one formation of 200 bombers and battle planes and fending off bomb attacks on airports in the London area.

Battles were raging in fully half a dozen areas of southeastern England, and the air ministry said at least 28 German planes had been shot down in the fighting before noon.

The London area had its third alarm of the day at 12:55 p. m., (6:55 a. m., EST) after the longest night raid of the war—seven hours and 33 minutes—in which strewn wreckage showed the Germans had succeeded in getting through to drop bombs in virtually every district around the London balloon barrage.

Sewers were hit, a gas main wrecked, railroad stations hit and communications temporarily knocked out, an air raid shelter containing 1,000 persons hit, a hospital demolished and houses and shops knocked to pieces.

Officials said there were comparatively few casualties resulting from the bomb shelter and hospital hits

While London was undergoing this non-stop raid, similar alarms and attacks were occurring throughout virtually the rest of England.

Then the raiders returned just as Londoners were going to work.

Curls of smoke from the exhaust of planes so high in the sky they were invisible gave spectators the feeling of watching a ghost combat.

The morning alarm lasted an hour and 11 minutes, and then just after noon Londoners were sent to shelters again by an alarm that lasted 59 minutes.

Squadrons of Hurricanes were reported to have cleared the sky in a sharp engagement with a small force of raiders over the Thames during this period. One parachute was seen drifting toward the southeast.

At the same time, it appeared, a bigger engagement was being fought over the mouth of the Thames.

Raiders streaked out of the sun in such swarms observers were unable to count them.

Airdromes were the main objectives of two formidable formations. A terrific battle was fought for 15 minutes near one of these fields.

British reports said the bomber masses, failing to hit either of the fields, were broken up and beat off.

Two nurses were killed and a number of patients were feared to have been killed when a bomb demolished part of a hospital during a heavy night raid over a Kent town.

Doctors and nurses worked by flashlight to save as many patients as possible, and one nurse clad in nightdress crawled over the debris to give morphia injections to wounded patients.

One of the German planes shot down was a Messerschmitt which crashed into a policeman's garden.

Three members of a bomber crew which crashed in flames over a southeastern town during the grand scale fighting this forenoon crawled out unhurt. The other crewman had bailed out.

The attack on the London area

REJECTED: Japs Turn Down U. S. Protests On Indo-China

(By Associated Press)

TOKYO—The newspaper Kokumin reported today that a meeting of key cabinet ministers had decided to reject official statements of the United States and Great Britain calling Japan's attention to their interests in maintenance of the status quo in French Indo-China

Earlier the foreign office spokesman, Yakichiro Suma, told his regular press conference that the United States had no cause for alarm concerning Indo-China

The American position had been given in a public statement by Secretary of State Hull while Britain's ambassador here, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, had been instructed by London to "remind" Japan of Britain's interest in maintenance of the status quo in Indo-China.

Both expressions were evoked by reports that Japan was seeking drastic military concessions in the French colony, including use of Haiphong as a military base and of the French Indo-China railway for movement of Japanese troops into China (Hongkong dispatches said Japan already had been conceded "limited" rights of such nature.)

Japanese officials have declared Indo-China within "Greater East Asia" Japan's proclaimed sphere of interest

Kokumin, considered an organ of the dominant army faction, said the decision had been reached by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye and the foreign, war and navy ministers

Domei, the authoritative Japanese news agency, said the four had deliberated on the Indo-China and other foreign issue but did not report any decision.

Some well-informed quarters believed Japan merely would ignore the British-America statements.

CHAPTER XI

But it was Norman's voice that said gravely, "Darling . . ."

That voice, with its intensity of feeling and intimacy, was like a knife through her. She straightened, pushed back her hair and moistened her lips.

"Norman, if you've called to apologize, I accept it and offer my own. I'd like to pretend it never happened, too." And because she could not bear to hear his voice again she put down the telephone, hearing him call her name just before the connection was severed.

Yes, externally everything was quite the same and her life would move along in its orderly fashion up to and beyond the autumn day when she married Alan. But how long did internal chaos last? How long before the high, heady heights became a safe plateau again? How long did love last—if not forever?

The amber light above the intimate corner table mingled with the fairness of Alan's hair and threw a soft flattering light upon his face.

They had cocktails and dinner, had danced once and were now lingering over coffee and cigarets when he said, "I was going to keep it for a surprise but I thought you should know and help with it . . ."

"Help with what?"

"Your house—and mine," he smiled at her. "I know we spoke of staying in the apartment for a couple of years, but I knew you'd like a house of your own. So I've bought the land and an architect is drawing up some plans. Just tentative plans, of course. I thought they'd give us some ideas. You can make all the changes you care to. I bought two acres out in the Hills. It's signed and sealed."

She felt tears prick her eyes.

"Aren't you going to say anything, Carol?"

"Only that—that you are doing everything for me, Alan, everything and—and thank you."

"Everything isn't too much for you."

"You're spoiling me." He had been thinking of her, planning a home when Norman had kissed her into loving him.

"Not as much as I'm going to spoil you. Are you wondering how I managed? I had some extra money and the government makes it fairly easy to buy a house these days. I thought we'd stay in the apartment this winter and build in the spring. I'll get the plans in a couple of days and we'll go over them. It would have been more fun if I could have taken you out and shown you the house finished. But you wouldn't have had a hand in it and there are probably a hundred items you'll want that wouldn't occur to me."

Reaching across the table, he took her hand. "The best for us. Nothing but the best. We haven't had it but we're going to have it."

"I didn't know it meant so much to you, Alan, having things . . ."

He frowned. "It does. Maybe I'm just beginning to see what I've missed, the luxuries, the things money will buy. I want my wife to have them. I'm on the way up, Carol. Nothing is going to stop me. At a luncheon the other day I sat next to a politician who made it pretty plain that I could be useful to him and he could be useful to me. The possibilities are unlimited if you keep your eyes open. You may be the governor's lady . . ."

Looking away, Carol kept her eyes on the red hat of a girl who was dancing. The governor's lady, she thought, with a secret in her heart of an hour too swiftly consumed, of a man's hand upon her shoulder and his mouth upon hers. Oh, Norman, the governor's lady will follow you and Edwina on your merry, fortunate way through the newspapers, through gossip . . .

"You know I'm with you, Alan, in anything you do." Could she have told Alan if that hour had not been so incomplete? Could she have told him even if Norman were not going to marry Edwina? Could she have heaped more bitterness and humiliation upon him? No . . . no . . . Tonight, no matter the clamor in her heart, she'd have come back to Alan and she'd have been loyal to a promise made many weeks ago.

Alan said, "Old Mr. Hartley asked for you today. Today was my monthly visit. He asked me what we'd like for a wedding present."

Old Mr. Hartley had been the owner of Newton's most lucrative hardware store and after his retirement, due to blindness, he had continued to live in rooms above the store and was cared for by a kindly colored servant. A frugal man and a bachelor, he had invested heavily and wisely in real estate and it was to Alan he had gone for help in handling his affairs when he could no longer see to read or write. Though Carol had not met him, he had become a very real person to her for often she sensed that Alan's moodiness after a visit to Mr. Hartley was due to the old man's crossness and to the mental infirmities of old age.

"How was he today?"

"He's getting very feeble and his mind is cloudy. Talks to himself and eats almost nothing. I'm afraid if he lives much longer he'll be a mental case."

"You've been very good to him and very patient with him. I doubt that any one else would have bothered. He has no relatives, no heirs?"

After a slight pause, he said, "Some other attorney drew up his will. I don't know what's in it, of course. Probably an eccentric one. There's no telling. He has no relatives that I know of and he lives as if he didn't have a dime. I'll take you to see him sometime if you'd like to meet him."

"Maybe Rosie could fix something he'd like, something special."

He smiled. "Her special strawberry shortcake, for instance? Ready to go?"

"Where are we going?"

"Out to see the good earth that belongs to us."

An hour later, by the light of a thin disc of moon, they stood at the side of the road looking at bare land and trees. Her hand slipped into his was an unspoken assurance that it would be as he wished it to be, that together they would see a house beneath the trees, that in all the years to come she would stand beside him like this. A mad moment had come and gone and this was where she belonged—here with Alan. In the end it would have been to Norman not to Alan that she would have said, "I can't marry you. A promise is a contract I can't break," even if Norman loved her and Edwina Burke had never come back. And because tears whipped her eyes and she turned her head aside, she did not see Alan's face, stubborn, determined, flinging defiance across the hills . . .

She knew suddenly how tired she was and how much she wanted sleep to erase this day, bringing another day the same as previous days. To sleep, to forget and then awaken being the same person she had been yesterday, Carol, fiance to Alan, secure and happy and unafraid. It had to be like that again. Oh, it had to be!

Edwina's black hair blew gaily in a playful wind. She and Norman had stopped for luncheon, were on the road again, and New York was no more than a hundred miles distant. Light-hearted and companionable, she had amused him with stories of her most innocent and amusing adventures; liking his deep hearty laugh and his keen enjoyment of a good story.

Her high spirits thus sustained, Edwina anticipated days and nights of fun and dancing, days and nights with Norman coming ever closer. She could not and would not fail. The luck of the Irish. The Burkes never failed. They always got what they wanted. She was eager to say, "Drive faster, Norman," because she wanted Newton and the house that Patrick Burke had built and all the dreams he had put in it far away now. "Drive faster" so that she could run away from her fears with the only man who could save her from disaster.

Norman asked, "Where shall I take you, Edwina? You have an apartment?"

"No. I gave it up. I never had any privacy. Mobs of people there all the time. I'm going to a hotel." After she had told him the name of the hotel, she said, "I'll keep tomorrow night open for you. We could find some place where it isn't too hot to dance. In the meantime . . ."

"Business for me."

She laughed. "Fun for me, darling." Fun! There were few people she dared see, few to whom she did not owe money. She thought: I'll rest and look lovely tomorrow night when he comes. I'll have nothing else to do. Where are all the people who drank my liquor and ate my food and borrowed from me when I had it? Friends!

Norman said, "Don't get into the headlines."

"The headline, you mean," she thought. She said seriously, looking ahead at the increasing traffic, "I'm thinking of turning over a new leaf. I'd like to get straight with the world for once and get off the merry-go-round. How is it off the merry-go-round, Norman? Do you think I could stand it? Crazy world, isn't it? So much beauty to see and women look in mirrors instead. Every one running around like mad—for what?"

"I've found that the world is chiefly occupied with the problem of existence."

"You're a funny one to talk about that. You really don't have to work, do you?"

After a moment he said, "No, actually I don't. But I've never touched a penny of what my grandfather left me, neither the principal nor the interest. I wanted to prove to myself and to other people that I could get along without it." He smiled at her. "You are a funny one to talk about money."

She bit into her lip. "Yes, I suppose I am. Yet if all the people who are killing themselves to make it would realize how false their lives will be when they get it, they'd live more and work less." She sat up suddenly. "Am I getting serious? Why don't you stop me?" She shrugged. "Why should I be serious?"

Norman said, "Why should you, indeed? You're Edwina Burke."

Feeling that the small hotel room was a jail, Edwina walked miles the next day. Up and down Fifth avenue and Park avenue she walked in the sultry heat. The elegantly displayed clothes no longer tempted her and she was bitterly amused that when she could no longer afford to buy them she did not want them. Buying clothes had become a diminishing thirst, too. Nor did the appealing pictures in the windows of the steamship offices tempt her. She knew foreign cities almost as well as she knew New York and she knew that of all places she had seen only in the house her father built did she feel at home. "I'm no cosmopolite," she thought, her eyes beneath the broad-brimmed black straw hat looking ahead, seeing none of the hurriedly passing faces.

Returning to her hotel, she slept fitfully and when she awoke she took a long time to dress. It was odd to have so much time. In the past she had never had time for enough sleep and was invariably late wherever she went. Now she regretted that the few people she had met and liked while traveling had stopped writing to her because she had not answered their letters. There had been a young Englishman (she had forgotten his name) whom she met at Cannes and who would inherit a title. He had been like a faithful, adoring dog. She had hurt him. She had hurt a lot of people, not meaning to, but she had not wanted to be bothered. At least she could have been tactful and left a pleasant memory.

She wore a white silk jersey dinner frock, a slim band of diamonds on her arm and the square-cut emerald on her hand, the ring which had been her father's last gift to her and from which she would never part. Putting on a short while silk coat and picking up white gloves and a jeweled bag, she left the hotel and called a taxi. She was going to Norman's apartment since she was afraid that somehow, if he came for her, he would discover the small, cheap room she had taken.

Cleveland Indians Go on Warpath Without Chief Vitt

Homers Defeat Tribe

Allen Faces Newsom in 3rd Tilt; Detroit Wins, 11 to 3.

DETROIT—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians went on a new war path uncharted by Chief Oscar Vitt today as the pennant race developed into the tightest tangle of the season.

Most of the players attended a hotel room session without the knowledge of Manager Vitt last night and laid new plans for today's series finale with Detroit and the rest of the season.

They were a very serious and determined-looking band after losing their second game to the Tigers, making four straight losses, and seeing both Detroit and New York climb within two games of their first place.

The Indians were very reluctant to discuss their council of war. Asked how they expected to carry out their plans without cooperation of Vitt, one spokesman said grimly "if we have to do it we'll give the orders ourselves.

"We are out to do only one thing and that is to win the pennant. We think we can do it but not with the kind of ball we've been playing.

"We've decided we must go for one or two runs at a time and this means we can't overlook any chances to advance runners. That's what we talked about—ways and means of getting runs across the plate without leaving so many men on the bases."

The Tigers sent Buck Newsom after his 18th victory and a sweep of the three-game series today. Johnny Allen who pitched a heartbreaker Labor day, was the Indians' choice for mound duty.

Detroit home runs put the second game away yesterday 11 to 3, just as they did the first game. Homers by Rudy York and Bruce Campbell brought in six runs.

Al Smith started in the box for Cleveland and the Tigers nicked him for a two-run lead in the second and third innings.

The Indians uncorked their only scoring in the fifth inning but it was enough to drive Tommy Bridges from the mound. Ray Mack singled and Rollie Hemsley forced him. Smith walked.

Yanks, Boston Gain on Leaders In Hectic Race

Tygers Hold First Workout Under Lights at Stadium Field

New York Sweeps Two Tilts From Washington to Forge Ahead.

By JUDSON BAILEY

The American league inferno is getting hot enough to explode, and it probably will next week.

Right now, there is a good possibility Cleveland, Detroit and New York wil be approximately tied by Tuesday when the world champion Yankees invade the west for two games with the Indians and three with the Tigers.

If something doesn't pop in the heat that will be on in those games, it only can mean the American league is lined with asbestos.

The valiant Detroit Tigers overwhelmed the Indians again yesterday, 11-3, and the Yankees walloped the Washington Senators in both ends of a doubleheader, 2-1 and 8-1. Furthermore, the Boston Red Sox pounced on the Philadelphia Athletics, 9-7, and created the almost unprecedented situation of the entire first division being bunched inside 4½ games three weeks before the season ends.

A four-game losing streak hardly can be called a Cleveland collapse, but the Tigers certainly have the Indians on the run. After trampling Bobby Feller Wednesday, the Detroit sluggers roughed up lefty Al Smith and Joe Dobson yesterday, scoring nine runs in batches of three in the sixth, seventh and eighth innings. Rudy York and Bruce Campbell each homered with two on.

The Yanks had no snap achieving their double win. They got an unearned run off Dutch Leonard in the first game, which rookie pitcher Ernie Bonham singled home. He also singled to help get the other tally and kept seven hits spaced for his fourth straight victory. In the nightcap, Walter Masterson checked the champs on four hits for seven innings, but they blasted out three runs in the eighth and another three in the ninth to make the score lopsided.

The Boston victory was a typical Red Sox maneuver. They scored six runs in the second and let the A's come right back for seven in the third, three on a homer by Bob Johnson.

The Chicago White Sox stopped the St. Louis Browns, 4-2, in a night pitching duel between Ed Smith and Bill Trotter.

The National league flowed along its placid course as though it never had known any September tribulations. The Cincinnati Reds conquered the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-3, to welcome Johnny Vander Meer back into the big time. "Double No-Hit" kept nine hits pretty well scattered, walked five and struck out six.

The Brooklyn Dodgers kept the distance, eight games back, by beating out the Phillies, 8-5, and the New York Giants swept a doubleheader from the Boston Bees, 8-7 and 4-1.

Ringside Team Grabs First Place

Outboard Motorboat Races To Be Staged Sunday.

First outboard motorboat races ever to be held in this vicinity will be staged Sunday at the Pleasant Hill dam under sponsorship of the Pleasant Hill Boat club, it was announced today. Twelve drivers from Ohio and Michigan are expected to take place in the event, scheduled to begin at 2 p. m. Participating boats will be equipped with 22 and 60 horse power motors. The course has been arranged so that the races can be seen either from the dam or the road, according to Vern Jones, chairman of the race committee.

SOME NAME!

FORT COLLINS, Colo.—(AP)—It's a good bet that Colorado State may have the most misspelled football player's name in the Big Seven this year—Tony Iadisernia, a 200-pound tackle.

Scores 3-0 Win Over Possum to Open Matches In 'B' Bowling League.

POUNDING the maples for a spectacular 2626 total, the Ringside Nite club team today holds down the top position in the Commercial 'B' bowling league following opening round matches at the Meder Recration alleys last night.

Led by Foreman, who socked out a 547, the Nite club team swept its three matches from the Possum Run outfit. Yuncker Sports, the Mansfield Printers, and Vern Jones' Outdoor store shared the runner-up berth after taking two matches from their rivals.

* * *

H. Hipp showed the keglers how to hit the pins as he smashed out a 562 total to walk off with individual scoring honors. High single game honors went to Carl Heilman, who finished with a 235 total and a 551. The Funston team topped the teams in single game totals with a 958.

Tiffin Team Hands Braves 8-6 Defeat

TIFFIN'S MUDHENS chalked up an early lead in an Ohio State league game at the Fairground last night and went on to hand the Mansfield Braves an 8 to 6 beating before a crowd of about 300.

Tonight the Braves travel to Fremont where they meet the Green Sox in a single contest. The Braves defeated the Green Sox in a double-header played at the Fairground Monday night.

Shut out 5-0 in the first two innings, the Braves scored their first run in the third frame. They added three more in the fifth, and pushed their final two tallies across the plate in the ninth.

Tiffin opened their scoring early registering three tallies in the first inning and two in the second. The yadded another pair of runs in the fourth and one in the seventh.

Benton started on the mound for the Braves but was removed after working only one-and-one-third innings after giving up five hits. He was replaced by Patterson.

The Mudhens collected nine safeties of ftwo Mansfield hurlers while the Braves were getting 10 off Thomas and Bayliss. One of the Tiffin hits was a home run by Gerlach, first baseman.

As a preliminary to the Mansfield-Tiffin tilt, Liberty Park nosed out Galion 5 to 4 in a North Central Ohio baseball league game. Hoff, working on the mound for the park aggregation, allowed only four hits and Scott, the Galion hurler, allowed five safeties.

FOREST DAUGHERTY

Merchants' Pilot to Send Club After 1st National Softball Title.

The Mansfield Merchants, Ohio girls' sotfball champions, Mansfield's entry in the 1940 World's Softball tournament now in progress at Detroit, were scheduled to play their first game at noon today, meeting North Carolina champions.

After trying for four years to win the state title, Manager Forest Daugherty's Merchants came through with a brilliant 3-2 victory over North Ridgeville in the finals of the Ohio tournament last week, to cop the title.

Ohio's other entry, the Page Dairy team of Toledo, which beat Ferguson State Auditors of Columbus in the Ohio state finals, met the Old Pals of Williamsport, Pa., champions of that state, at 10 a. m. today.

The Detroit tournament swung into high gear today with a schedule calling for 65 games to be played before nightfall. In opening games last night two world titlists were knocked from further competition.

Lumbers, All-Stars Meet In Benefit Softball Series.

The Alta Lumbers and Y. M. C. A. Commercial league All-Stars will meet in a five-game benefit softball series, Manager Pete Schadek of the Lumbers announced today. Two of the games will be played as a doubleheader at Liberty park Sunday. Dale McKinley of the Lumbers will face Warren Gross in the first game at 1:30 p. m., while Joe Wentz and Mike Rachel tangle in the second tussle. Pilot Pete Metz of the All-Stars requests his players report at the field at 1:15 p. m Sunday.

GRIDDERS INJURED

AKRON—(INS)—Although their opening game is two weeks away, Akron university Zippers had been visited by tough luck today. Dick Baylor, promising sophomore halfback, suffered a broken wrist in a scrimmage session and will be lost to the team for a month.

The Detroit men's team eliminated Nic Carr's of Covington, Ky., 5 to 1, and the Detroit women's outfit upset the Alameda, Calif. feminine aggregation, 2 to 1. The Carr's team won the crown last year while the Alameda women were international titlists in 1938 and 1939.

Conn Faces Test Against Pastor In Match Tonight

NEW YORK—(AP)—Billy Conn and Bob Pastor fight it out over the 15-round route in Madison Square Garden tonight to decide a future opponent for Joe Louis, but when last heard from Joe wasn't worrying too much about it.

The best that can be said about the chances of the Pittsburgh pretty boy or the ex-collegian from Manhattan, if tossed in there with the Bomber, is that tonight's fight should be a good match to see.

The fight, postponed from mid-August because of a light shower and a lighter ticket sale, has caught on with the cash customers the last few days. Promoter Mike Jacobs is confident now he'll have $50,000 and about 15,000 of the faithful in the house when they start swinging at 9 p. m. (EST). On its original August date, the bout would have been lucky to draw $35,000.

Vander Meer Hurls Victory In First Start For Cincinnati

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Don't look now, but maybe that's the Johnny Vander Meer of old.

He has the stuff and he has the speed. He won the ball game. He was lucky, but most winning pitchers are.

Those who have watched the big southpaw through three-up-and-down years put it this way, "if he can keep on pitching the way he did yesterday, win, lose, or draw, he's a back-comer."

The way he pitched yesterday resulted in the Pittsburgh Pirates' 18th straight defeat on the Cincinnati Reds' home grounds. The 6 to 3 score at last broke the Reds' string of one-run victories and protected the National league champions' eight-game lead over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Johnny's first start since being sent to Indianapolis to learn control and confidence was marked by five lapses of control resulting in walks and by one balk which helped produce a Pittsburgh run.

However, the important thing about these matters is that they did not upset the boy.

In the eighth, with the Reds trailing, 3 to 2, Frank McCormick delivered a single to ship two scores across the plate and a minute later Lonnie Frey hit a blooper for two more.

It all added up to Johnny's first major league victory since July 30, 1939.

* * *

Only time will tell if the double-no-hit boy of 1938 is really on the road back, but at least part of the story is in.

Softball Club In Semi-Finals

St. Peter's Catholic Team Tackles Defiance.

Mansfield St. Peter's Catholic softball team will meet the Defiance St. John's combine in the semi-finals of the Toledo Diocesan softball tournament at Fremont Sunday, it was announced here today.

The Mansfield game will be the second contest on the afternoon program with Fremont St. Joseph's meeting Toledo Blessed Sacrament in the opening tilt. The finals for the Bishop Alter trophy will be played following the semi-final playoff.

One change has been announced in the Mansfield lineup. "Chick" Jurgens will replace Charlie Walter in right field. Either Roy Rachel or Walters will work on the mound for the St. Peter team with Joe Lesch scheduled to do the catching.

The Mansfield combine advanced to the semi-finals by defeating the Sandusky Catholic Youth organization 9 to 4 at Toledo last Sunday. The semi-finals, originally set for Toledo, were changed to Fremont because of its central location.

Teams participating in the circuit this season are: Dominion Electric; Hecht and Casey Coals; New Method Laundry; Mets' Auto Supply; Ritz Nite club; Levering's Dairy; Liederkranz; Safety Cabs; City Loan; Mansfield Structural and Iron; Sears and Roebuck and Sferro's Lunch.

Alta Lumbers Trip Wescos

Register 13-2 Triumph In Postponed Contest.

The Alta Lumber company softball team trounced the Wesco combine 13 to 2 in a postponed Y. M. C. A. Independent league game yesterday at the Blue Goose field.

The Wescos held a 2 to 1 lead in the first inning but that was wiped out in the second frame when the Lumbers pushed six runs across the plate, more than enough to win the contest.

To make sure of winning the tilt the Lumbers came back again in the fifth frame to score six more tallies.

McKinley, working on the mound for the Lumbers, held the Wescos to only two hits. These were collected by Mathias and Morgan. While the Wescos were limited to two safeties, the Lumbermen were collecting 13 hits off the pitching of Deschner. Both twirlers struck out four batters.

THEATERS

Synthetic Honeymoon.

A sweepstakes ticket, a synthetic honeymoon, life in Greenwich village, a hero and heroine in the persons of Ronald Colman and Ginger Rogers, make "Lucky Partners," a modern laugh-drama of much interest. Jack Carson is cast as Ginger's bovine slow-witted fiance, while Spring Byington, Cecelia Loftus and Harry Davenport have other important roles in this picture which comes to the Ohio Saturday.

Fun Classic.

Starring the Ritz Brothers and the Andrew Sisters, famed swing trio, the streamlined musical farce, "Argentine Nights" comes to the Madison Saturday. Nine new songs are introduced in the elaborate film. Constance Moore has the romantic lead as the torch singer who takes her girl band into pampas country and falls in love with a recent screen discovery. The co-feature is "Money and the Woman," starring Jeffrey Lynn and Brenda Marshall.

Romantic Drama.

Paired for the first time, Jean Parker and Richard Carlson will be seen in the romantic leads in "Beyond Tomorrow" showing at the Park. Other members of the all-star cast are Charles Winninger, Maria Ouspenskaya, Helen Vinson, C. Aubrey Smith and Harry Carey. The second attraction is "The Ranger and the Lady" in which Roy Rogers and George "Gabby" Hayes are starred. Jacqueline Wells has the feminine lead.

Broadway Life.

The story of "An Angel From Texas" showing at the Ritz is one which deals with two yokels from the Lone Star state who take Broadway and its sucker baiters by storm. Eddie Albert and Rosemary Lane have the leads with a fine supporting cast composed of Jane Wyman, Wayne Morris and Ronald Reagan. William Boyd is seen in a new Hopalong drama "Hidden Gold," in the co-feature.

Vigilante Drama.

Showing through Saturday at the Majestic will be Johnny Mack Brown in a swift vigilante drama. The story is declared to be historically authentic in its depiction of vigilantes in action, and deals with the efforts of a band of swindlers who try to promote a crooked irrigation project. "Riders of Pasco Basin" is the title and will be shown with "One Crowded Night," a human drama.

Ashland Garbage Clean-up Ordered By County Board

ASHLAND—Plans will be studied here by city officials in co-operation with county health officers to provide for the incineration of city garbage, following an attack by the county health board on alleged illegal deposit of garbage within the county health area.

The announcement of the meeting to look into the matter came after 42 petitioners asked the county health board for relief from "stench, flies, rats, which cause disease and devaluate property."

The county board invoked a regulation issued in 1933, to prohibit the deposit of garbage within the county health area. These regulations were drawn by Mayor Howard S. Lutz, then prosecuting attorney for this city.

The prohibition would affect the deposit of garbage which residents here say is hauled to the Kunkel farm near the disposal plant, and fed to 400 hogs owned by the Universal Livestock company. The garbage is delivered to the company by virtue of a contract signed with the city.

Junkers rest on most car lots
But there are none on mine,
My cars are all in first class shape,
I tell you man, they're fine.
I've got a place for junkers
And sell only the best,
The choice ones sell from off my lot—
And Nippon gets the rest.

MART FALTERS DURING PROFIT SELLING TODAY

Dealings Are Active at Start, But Slow Near Second Hour: Wall Street Optimistic.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — After 10 successive sessions in which the Associated Press average of 60 stocks has been either unchanged or up, the market faltered today as more profit selling made its appearance.

Dealings, fairly active at the start, slowed near the second hour and losses of fractions to a point or so predominated.

Wall Street still viewed the European situation and home business prospects optimistically, brokers said, but the approach of the week-end, with the battle of England growing hotter, apparently caused some speculative forces to cash in on the lengthy advance.

Comforting to market followers was the survey of Dun & Bradstreet disclosing retail spending throughout the country this week averaged 6 to 13 per cent above the corresponding 1939 period.

In line with liveliness of aircraft manufacturing company stocks was the compilation of a trade review estimating this industry now has commitments from the army and navy for about 13,000 planes, 37,000 engines and 41,000 propellers.

DICTATORSHIP OUSTS RULER OF RUMANIANS

Prince Michael Takes Throne as King Carol Goes Into Exile With Magda.

had died before his firing squads, roamed Bucharest, beating Jewish shopkeepers who failed to hang pictures of stalwart young Michael in their windows.

Much of the clamor for Carol's abdication and Michael's succession had come from the Iron Guard. Michael had been king under a regency a decade ago while Carol was living in Paris with Madame Lupescu.

Police made no effort to control the excesses of the guardists. Street celebrations of Michael's rebirth to kingship often masked the depredations of the guardist squads.

Carol left Rumania in the firm hands of Premier-General Ion Antonescu who has aligned his new nationalistic regime closely with the destinies of warring Germany and Italy.

The old crown council, composed of former premiers and close confidantes of Carol, was "suppressed," as the announcement said, shortly after noon today. This had been the highest governing body in the old regime.

The council had made the final decisions on surrender of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina to Russia last June and northern Transylvania to Hungary last week. At the same time the mayor of Bucharest, General Domroski, was dismissed.

Princess Helen of Greece, divorced wife of Carol and mother of the new king, was reported in government circles planning to come to Bucharest by plane to join her son. These sources declined to disclose from what point she was coming. She has been living in Italy.

At noon Rumania's new dictator, Antonescu, was still without a cabinet. He went to bed for his first real sleep in many days after ordering cancellation of all Rumanian passports.

Michael's first act was to sign over full dictatorial powers to General Ion Antonescu, who issued an order that the Rumanian army must take an oath of complete allegiance to King Michael.

The Iron Guardists had demonstrated most of the night, and the streets were much battered under their riotous outbursts. Steel-helmeted soldiers were called out to protect the palace. The capital was an armed camp.

Tens of thousands of persons stormed down Calea Victorrei carrying flags and photographs of Michael and headed toward the palace.

Carol issued a proclamation to his people asking them to support Michael.

"Misfortune has come upon our country," said Carol. "She finds herself facing grave peril. I want to eliminate these perils by turning over to my son, whom I know you love a great deal."

"I make this sacrifice," he said, "to save the country. I pray God it will not be in vain."

Gen. Antonescu, likewise in a brief communique, appealed to the public to support Michael.

The abdication itself was a dramatic event, with Carol, worn and haggard, finally giving in to the demands of Antonescu. The dictator almost immediately took the oath of office under King Michael, who received a promise of fidelity from Gen. Antonescu. As this ceremony was concluded, the premier shook hands with the young king, saying grimly:

"Sire a prayer to God to help your majesty and me."

Meanwhile, Prosecutor G. W. Marriott said he would obtain copies of the Communist petitions circulated in Richland county and

If your name was published as a signer of a Communist petition and you did not sign, your denial will be printed if you will call The News-Journal. In this way, you will also assist the Richland county election board in making its check for fraud. If you signed the petitions in the belief they were for something else than for the Communist party, your explanation will be published if you will call The News-Journal.

"look into this matter of alleged violation of the law pertaining to nominating petitions."

"No one who signed the petitions has asked me to investigate any alleged misrepresentation in obtaining signatures, but there may be some basis for action," Marriott said.

In Franklin county (Columbus), Prosecutor Ralph J. Bartlett said today he would ask the grand jury convening Sept. 16 to investigate complaints of fraudulent practices in the circulation of the Communist party petitions.

Secretary of State George Neffner said hundreds of complaints continued to come to his office from signers who said they did not know what they were signing or were deceived into signing the petition.

Neffner was instructed to make photographic copies of all Communist petitions for examination by the Dies committee investigating un-American activities. Neffner said the work would be done immediately.

A second resolution commending The News-Journal for publishing the names of persons who signed Communist petitions in Richland county was passed last night by the Mansfield Knights of Columbus. Paul G. Snyder, grand knight, said.

Earle McVey post of the American Legion approved a resolution Wednesday night, thanking The News-Journal for publishing the lists.

Two more signers of the petitions, making a total of 14, told The News-Journal today they did not know what they were signing when they put their names on the petitions and asked that their names be withdrawn. They were Barbara Dekrell, 47 Vale avenue, and Ferdinand Schwaner, 296 Second avenue.

John Snowden, Mansfield, another signer, said he knew what he was signing, but denied that he is a Communist.

"I am not a member of the Communist party, but I signed the petition and knew what it was," he said. "I signed it because I believe that activity of left-wing organizations brings about reforms such as increased pensions, higher wages, and other benefits. I believe in the right of the minority parties to a place on the ballot."

Statements of the other two signers who said they have no Communistic affiliations follow:

BARBARA DECKRELL, 47 Vale avenue—I thought the petitions were to keep us out of war and for old age pensions. I would not have signed the petitions if I had known they were for the Communist party."

FERDINAND SCHWANER, 296 Second avenue—I was approached in a public bar and didn't take time to read the petition. I was under the impression it was for more old age pensions."

ever additional men needed to fill the quota.

Opponents of any such postponements frequently told the house that political considerations governed the vote, because if the bill became law immediately, the 60-day period would end right after the November elections.

Fish's amendment, however, would not alter the basic provision of draft legislation requiring the immediate registration of men from 21 to 44, inclusive. Only their summons to a year's service would be delayed.

After winning the vote, Fish estimated that only 200,000 new enlistments would be obtained in the 60-day period, thus making it necessary to call 200,000 conscripts to raise the needed manpower.

The senate, before passing its version of the conscription bill, rejected 43-to-41, an identical postponement amendment by Senator Hayden (D-Ariz). In addition, the senate bill has another major difference—it provides the much narrower age limit of from 21 through 30.

Democratic Leader Rayburn of Texas described the Fish amendment as "a terrible mistake," "bad psychology" and "dangerous" because it would postpone the start of building up of a big army.

The only other amendent considered — and accepted — during yesterday's hours of desultory debate, would require deductions from state draft quotas of men in military service when the legislation becomes law, and also the men who had enlisted during the 60-day period.

Hoodlums Held For Effort To Free Licavoli

TOLEDO —(AP)— Police jailed two Detroit men, described as "hoodlums," early today in a purported plot to promote the release of Thomas (Yonnie) Licavoli and four members of his gang in Ohio penitentiary.

The Licavoli mobsters are serving life terms for slaying Jackie Kennedy, a rival Toledo gangster, on July 7, 1933.

Safety Director Edward A. De Angelo said the Detroit men approached several witnesses in the Licavoli trial and asked them to swear that they gave false testimony.

A complete transcript of the testimony and other documents from the trial were found in their possession.

Held on suspicion, the two were questioned for several hours but police declined to disclose what information they obtained.

The men were tagged at the home of a witness after a patrolman south and [illegible] conversation [illegible] with [illegible] the safety [illegible] and [illegible] officers.

WAVES OF NAZI PLANES ATTACK LONDON AGAIN

British Battle Worst Raids; Shelter and Hospital Hit By German Bombs.

came as Londoners were going to work after a night in which there were two alarms—one of seven hours and 33 minutes, the longest of the war, and another of 31 minutes after an all-clear period of only half an hour.

In the southeast district fighting, British fighters challenged 12 German bombers flying in arrowhead formation. One Spitfire opened the battle by speeding straight into the formation.

During the London morning alarm, at the height of the rush hour, watchers in the heart of the city looking east over St. Paul's cathedral could see many smoke trails from high-flying planes in the distance.

Raids during the night were widespread and resulted in fatalities among casualties in many sections of the country.

High explosive and incendiary bombs fell in the London area, and traffic was disorganized in an eastern suburb by hits on a railway station.

The government also announced a hospital in Kent was hit, with a few patients killed.

Germans Claim 35 Planes Bagged

BERLIN—(U.P.)—Thirty-five British planes were shot down in air battles over the British Isles this morning and although German bombers and fighters attacking military objectives in southern England encountered strong fighter opposition their raids were successful, well informed German quarters said today.

It was claimed that the waves of German attackers smashed through British balloon barrages and fighters and bombed military objectives "with good success," destroying several hangars at one airdrome and an assembly plant at an aircraft factory. Ten British planes were destroyed on the ground, it was claimed.

The high command earlier had said that intensive raids on England yesterday were highly successful.

The high command said that buildings and barracks at airdromes in southern England had been hit and that huge fires had been set at great oil tanks at Thameshaven, at the mouth of the Thames.

A communique said that German bombers, escorted by fighters, last night "effectively" bombed a number of airdromes in the neighborhood of Lincoln as well as docks at Liverpool, Portsmouth, Sunderland, Blyth and Hull.

Factories at Newcastle and harbor works and docks in the east end of London also were attacked, the high command said.

According to the communique German naval forces in overseas waters sank 41,000 tons of enemy merchant shipping.

It was admitted that during the night "British planes flew into Reich territory (near Berlin) and dropped bombs at individual points without causing damage worth mentioning.

The communique said that yesterday the British lost 46 planes, including two shot down by anti-aircraft guns. Barrage balloons also were destroyed, it was said, and German losses for the day were placed at 16 planes.

British airplanes had raided the Berlin and Munich areas during the night in what seemed to be becoming a daily attempt to break the sleep of Germans in big cities.

Air raid sirens sounded in the Berlin metropolitan area shortly after midnight (12:07 a. m., according to the German radio) and the "all clear" signal was given an hour and 20 minutes later.

royal rights because of his love for Mme. Magda Lupescu.

The boy ruled under a regency until 1930, when Carol returned by plane to Bucharest from exile in Paris and took the throne.

Now 18 years old, tall and heavily built, Michael is a great sportsman and automobile enthusiast. He began driving cars at the age of 12.

He was educated at a private school with two dozen youths from all classes of Rumanian society and passed his final examinations last June on the day that Russia invaded Bessarabia, which Rumania ceded to the U. S. S. R.

After this examination he was appointed a Rumanian senator and a lieutenant in the army.

His mother, Princess Helen of Greece, who was separated from Carol by divorce and has lived in exile in Florence, may now return to Bucharest. Michael has not seen her for three years.

Residents Seek to Keep New Village 'Dry' With Filing of Local Option Petition.

same basis of figuring petition signers cannot be used.

George C. Balliett, chairman of the election board, said it may be necessary to ask the secretary of state about the required number of signers after the election board has checked the signatures. There were considerably less than 300 voters in the new village at last year's election.

The petition was circulated and filed by Louis E. Rahn, 1934 Woodland road, a teacher at Senior high school and resident of the village.

The village has no establishment now where hard liquor is sold, but it was understood the local option petition was circulated after the Schwarz tavern on Lexington avenue was sold recently to an owner who plans to sell liquor.

Wants To Place Rubbish Cans In City's Downtown

City council had before it today a proposal submitted by a Columbus firm calling for the installation of rubbish containers in downtown Mansfield.

The proposal was filed with Council Clerk William J. Beer, jr., today by a representative of the Sanibox Company, Inc., Columbus. It proposes the installation of 40 metal containers to provide facilities for the collection of refuse, paper and waste material.

The company, the proposal states, agrees to furnish the containers and keep them in repair without any charge to the city but retain advertising poster rights on three sides of the containers.

It states further that advertising will not be "offensive to public policy or morals," and shall not at any time advertise intoxicating liquors.

It is proposed that each container will be supplied by the firm with a set of sacks for the inside, the removal of which would be up to the city when filled with rubbish.

ORCHESTRA-MINDED

NORTHAMPTON, Mass (U P) —Apparently thieves are trying to organize a dance orchestra in Northampton In less than a month they have stolen a tenor saxophone a trumpet, a violin and a complete trap drummer's outfit. All instruments, valued at a total of $450, were stolen from parked automobiles.

TRUCK RUNS 30 YEARS

OLIVET, Mich (UP) The first motorized fire truck is still in service despite 30-odd years of service. The truck was built by the Olds motor works at Lansing and used in the capitol city for 15 years before being sold to Olivet.

RACING PIGEONS CONQUER CANYON

PRESCOTT, Ariz —(U P)—Pigeon fanciers finally have proved that carrier pigeons can fly from the bottom of the Grand Canyon despite the treacherous wind currents in the mile deep gorge.

Last year, an attempt was made to hold a "Pigeon Derby" from the bottom of the Canyon to Prescott. There were six starters. Five never were seen again. The sixth was carried from the bottom of the Canyon on a mule.

This year, however, there were 25 starters and a majority of the birds reached their cotes at Prescott.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1940

If you hear anything about the rearmament program be sure to keep it quiet, otherwise Hitler might learn about it.

A new kind of varnish is said to make airplanes invisible—so maybe some of those "on order" have already been delivered.

The Cleveland Indians are now more afraid of the Yankees than the Tigers—but have pledged themselves to keep on trying to try.

Mr. Beery States His Views

NOW that M. J. Beery, who secured a number of the signatures to Communist party petitions in Mansfield, announces that he is "a registered Democrat"—and NOT a Communist, little appears to remain of an above-surface communist movement in Mansfield and vicinity.

Nor can it be doubted that the same sincerity which has marked Mr. Beery's long career of leadership among like-thinking associates in Mansfield was evidenced in his work of securing signers to the Communist petition, which was done, he says, "because I think this country is moving toward Fascism."

While Mr. Beery's designation of some of the petition-signers as "yellow liars," because they said he represented it as a pension petition, may have a somewhat harsh sound, it should be recalled that only recently the halls of congress rang with even more opprobrious epithets.

"Some of the people were pretty ignorant, but they all had a chance to read the petition," was the rather derogatory estimate which Mr. Beery placed on the intelligence of part of the signers—but even this should not be construed as an implication that all signers were not regarded as fully capable of understanding Communism and supporting its purposes.

The News-Journal, however, finds it difficult to follow Mr. Beery's trend of thought when he seeks to associate any expressions of this newspaper with some deep, dark Fascist plot to "get us into another war."

To the extent of its ability, amid a maze of widely varied thinking and contradictory opinions by apparently sincere people, The News-Journal has maintained in the past, and will continue in the future, a course which it believes to be honestly, consistently and patriotically AMERICAN.

This newspaper believes that AMERICANISM, based on principles of democracy and individual liberty under laws designed for the general welfare, is the antithesis of Communism, Fascism or Naziism—and that no man or woman can be loyal to more than one of these.

As for us, we choose AMERICANISM!

Physical Training for All

WHEN veterans of the 37th Division, A. E. F., at their recent reunion here, included general physical training in their resolutions favoring conscription and adequate defense, they touched on a point that has broader implications than casual reading might reveal.

While health betterment has been strongly emphasized for the past several decades, the distressing fact remains that sedentary occupations and detrimental habits have robbed many young and middle-aged men of the physical strength and endurance which a regimen of even mild training would give them.

Ideas of "personal liberty" have resulted, of course, in some objections to anything that savors of compulsion, yet few would deny that the physical well-being of individuals is as important in peace as in war and that reasonable disciplining for the duties and responsibilities of citizenship might well be regarded as proper training for normal boys and girls, as well as for older persons who were not privileged to enjoy early opportunities along this line.

Outdoor sports, school athletics, Boy Scouts and similar organizations have offered physical training opportunities to limited groups but it is apparently the thought of 37th Division veterans that this should be made more general and conducted as a national, rather than a community activity. The suggestion at least merits consideration, and its application might, within another generation, materially reduce the need for penal institutions now largely devoted to housing undisciplined men and women.

Clothing and Food for Nazis

THE Hitler government announces that it is now able to liberalize its distribution of clothing in Germany. It has supplies for the purpose, because the textile industries in France, Holland, Belgium and other neighboring countries "are now delivering to the German market." The food situation in Germany is better, too, for the same reason.

Nothing is said about the terms of such delivery. But information from other sources says the Nazis are looting the countries taken over, of their food, clothing and other supplies, for the benefit of the conqueror.

It is the old principle, "to the victor belong the spoils." But it seems unusually rapacious in this case, because the despoiled countries have been bludgeoned and looted when they were minding their own business and giving no offense. The newly Hitlerized countries will be cold and hungry next winter.

Warning In Kite Tragedy

BOYS everywhere should learn from an accident in New York never to use wire for a kite string, at least when there are electric wires around. Two boys had used a coil of bell wire. When their kite fell across a high tension line both were killed by electric shock.

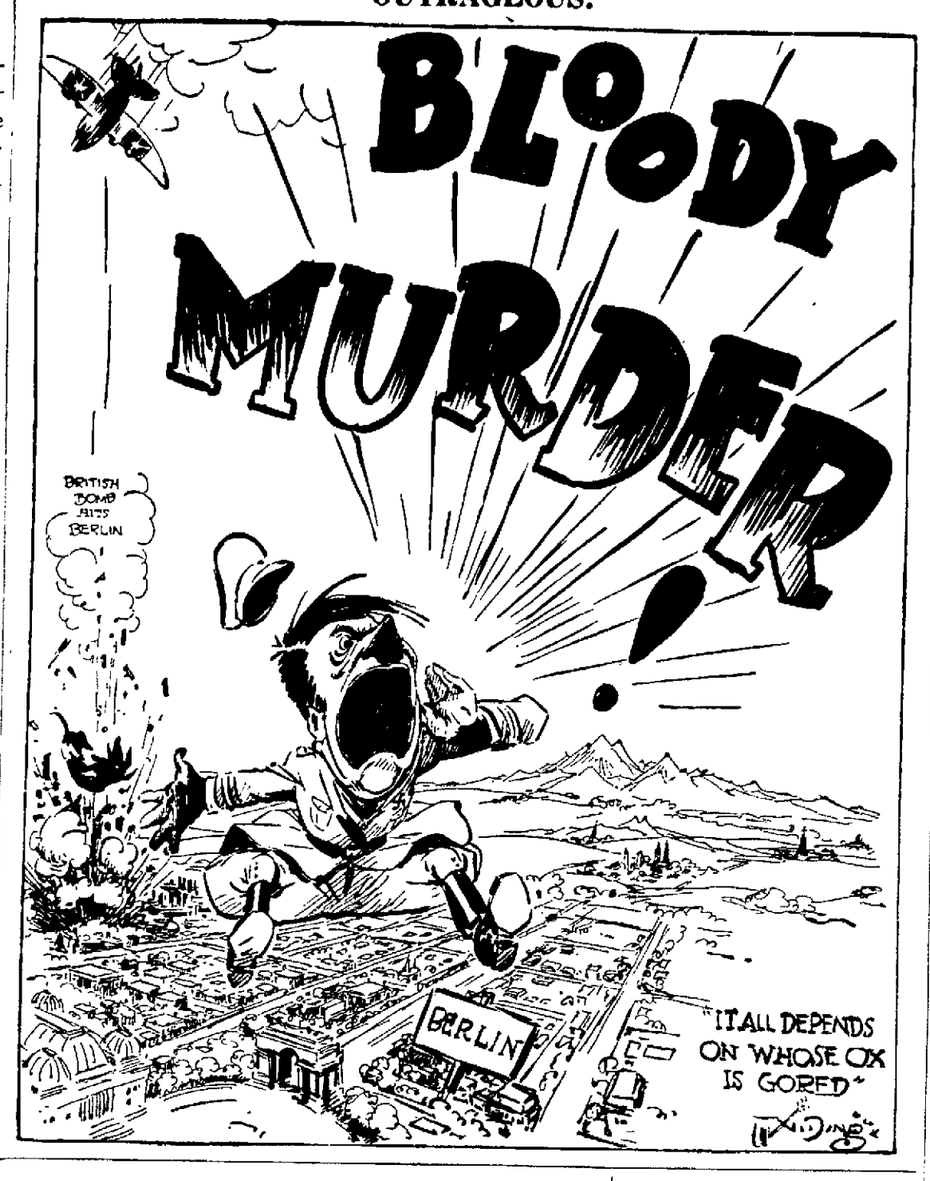
Benjamin Franklin, pioneer experimenter in the field of electricity, had a mild experience of that sort. He flew a kite during a thunder storm to see if he could get an electric or "galvanic" impulse from a storm cloud, and found that he could. A perceptible current came down the wet string. Fortunately he wasn't using wire.

Democracies as Easy Marks

RECENT articles by Col. William J. Donovan and Edgar Mowrer, made public by Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, reported that democracies are the easiest picking for "fifth column" meddlers. In free countries, they say, such deviltry can "function most freely and effectively."

This has been true, as the sad state of many a betrayed democracy attests today. But such betrayal doesn't seem likely to occur so frequently from now on. And this isn't merely because there are so few democracies now left to betray. Those that remain are waking up and getting more hardboiled about preserving their liberties.

OUTRAGEOUS!



Listen, World!

Why Not Corned Beef 'n' Cabbage?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SEND your thanks for the following pearl of wisdom to that grand space-juggler, Mr. E. V. Durling of King Features Syndicate, Inc. And make it vanilla-sundae for mine, when you celebrate. For if Socrates ever got off a better wisie than this, I'd like the copyright. Says E. V. D.—

"WHY, WHEN YOU ARE INVITED OUT FOR DINNER, DON'T FOLKS EVER HAVE CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE?"

Which is, I submit, not only a mouthful but also a practically perfect program for life! Corned beef and cabbage—if there's a more delectable or democratic dish—I've yet to meet it.

And take it from me, Messrs. Roosevelt and Willkie, if either of you boys want a fool-proof folio for election, there are the makings. Ye Average Voter may turn a deaf ear to talk of taxes 'n' tariffs. He may listen indifferently to high-tension tantrums over Conscription and Preparedness. He may even catch forty winks while the Big Boys are enthusiastically remembering The Forgotten Man. But just let someone—anyone—whisper—

"Corned Beef 'n' Cabbage—huh?"

. . . and he'll be there with an outsize platter and all his votes! For, regardless of all our highbrow pretensions,

CORNED BEEF 'N' CABBAGE IS WHERE WE AMERICANS LIVE!

The simple life . . . the common tang of honest, earthy things—that's our wave length! That's the material grub and the spiritual go-gettem—and the social get-together—we Yankees understand.

Yes, we can learn to wear tails. And eat caviar. And talk highbrow.

But deep in the heart of us, strong in the woof of us, are the old makings of simple meat and common growth which have nourished us since this nation first began.

CORNED BEEF 'N' CABBAGE, that's not only our national dish but it's the symbol of all we are, or all we hope to be, of all we stand for. Far back in the memories of our childhood—deep down in the roots of our philosophy as a people, beneath all the surface differences and dividends which set us apart—there lies this common bond which marks us as Americans—

CORNED BEEF 'N' CABBAGE!

THE SIMPLE, HONEST DISH OF A SIMPLE, SINCERE PEOPLE—

THE STRAIGHT-FROM-THE-SHOULDER FARE OF A BUNCH OF HARD-HITTIN' GUYS—

THAT'S THE "PSYCHIC SIGNIFICANCE" OF CORNED BEEF 'N' CABBAGE—

AND WHAT DUMBBELLS WE ARE TO FORGET IT IN OUR DAILY LIFE!

For there's the very core of democracy—the sharing of the common thing. The common duty and delight, the common decency, the common vision. There was, and is, the secret of our Americanism. Other nations may be regimented by elaborate rituals, whipped into line by threats and discipline or synthetic dreams of superority. But for us there is—and always has been—the shared and simple pleasure of—

CORNED BEEF 'N' CABBAGE!

LIBERTY AND EQUALITY!

The honest man meeting the flesh and fruit of the honest earth without caviar or conniving. Spirit dipping with spirit into one democratic source. Breaking and mingling the common gift, as Christ broke and mingled the bread and wine which were, forever, to be the symbol of His divine democracy.

CORNED BEEF 'N' CABBAGE—Why don't we remember them in our daily round? Why don't we use them in our evening hours? Why don't we share them in each simple, hungry touch of hand on hand?

Health And Diet

Typhoid Still Ready To Strike.

—By DR. CLENDENING

NOT THE least interesting parts of Dr. Hans Zinser's recent book of reminiscences are the accounts of his journeys to far corners of the earth looking for reservoirs of almost extinct diseases. Where now is yellow fever? Cholera? Typhus fever? Plague? I have been in practice for over thirty years and never saw a case of any of these diseases. That would hold true, I venture to say for ninety-nine per cent of the doctors in North America. Yet once each one of these pestilences was as familiar to a family doctor as the measles.

Yellow fever visited Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Orleans year after year, during Colonial times and early in the nineteenth century. The old women gossiping on the porches could diagnose it. Now I doubt if all my colleagues on the faculty would recognize a full blown case if it were brought in the hospital. But it isn't dead. Doctor Zinsner found it in Russia and Turkey.

Typhus fever, which used to be called jail fever, is an old offender which also has almost disappeared. A few years ago Doctor Brill, of New York, described a peculiar febrile condition that had been occurring in his wards. The patients had a fever and broke out in spots.

The condition was so mysterious that a new name had to be coined for it. It was called Brill's disease. But it turned out to be really typhus fever, a disease once as familiar as pneumonia. Where had it been all this time? We know it is carried by lice and fleas. The gradual disappearance of these little companions of man probably accounts for the disappearance of typhus. But it is not gone. Doctor Zinsner found a huge reservoir of typhus in Mexico, in the bodies of rats.

There is a lesson here which applies to typhoid fever. Once at this time of year it was among the comommest of diseases. Now it has almost disappeared. But our knowledge of how diseases sleep, ready to break out again, should teach us that the precautions against typohid should not be neglected.

We have no means of protection against the other diseases I listed, but against typhoid we do have means of protection. It is probably the widespread employment of typhoid immunization that accounts for the rarity of the disease today.

Yet it has not entirely disappeared. The death rate from typhoid fever in 1939 in the United States was the lowest on record—but there were 239 cases.

Typhoid Vaccination.

Fourteen cities in the United States have had no deaths from typhoid fever for the years 1938 and 1939. It is a roll of honor and should be recorded—the cities are Bridgeport, Cambridge, Elizabeth Fall River, Fort Wayne, Kansas City, Kansas; Lowell, Lynn, Milwaukee, New Bedford, Salt Lake City, South Bend, Utica and Wichita.

This result has been gained, of course, largely through public health supervision of water, milk and washed foods. But individual immunization by typhoid vaccination is still important. Don't protest when your child is urged to accept typhoid vaccination before entering school this fall.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Farley Has New Dealers Guessing; Soviet Wanted U.S. Ordnance Plant

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Jim Farley was in exuberant good humor when he attended his final cabinet meeting last week. But he didn't do all the laughing.

Clad completely in brown, his favorite color, Jim strode into the cabinet chamber beaming and bowing. He had just spent an hour lunching amicably with the president and appeared tickled pink with everyone and everything.

After shaking hands warmly all around, the postmaster general, who has joined the Coca Cola company, sat down—to find on the table directly before him a shiny sign which read:

The biggest and best
PEPSI COLA
5 cents

Note—Jim still has White House generalissimos on tenterhooks over whether he will make any speeches for the Roosevelt-Wallace slate in the campaign. So far efforts to schedule him have met with evasive replies. Jim hasn't said no, but neither has he said yes. Closest to a promise was his word to Senator David I. Walsh that he will make a speech for him in Boston and to Senator Jim Mead to put in some campaign licks for him in New York.

Willkie and Coca Cola.

FARLEY may not know it but his new bosses seriously considered offering Wendell Willkie a big Coca Cola job last spring.

The GOP standard bearer's entry into the presidential arena shelved the plan, but the Coca Cola rulers weighed the matter carefully.

Their interest in Willkie was aroused by his dynamic aggressiveness in battling the TVA, which made him, in their opinion, just the kind of a scrapper Coca Cola needs. Coca Cola has been facing increasing competition from rivals using the word "cola," and even the Life Saver company, headed by the recently resigned Undersecretary of Commerce Ed Noble, has adopted this name.

To combat these competitors Coca Cola has started a large-scale legal war, and Willkie, the slam-bang anti-TVA fighter, appealed strongly to "Coke" executives. The matter was dropped, however, when he tossed his hat into the presidential ring.

Note—Farley is no lawyer, but he is a super-salesman and has a far-flung personal acquaintance with federal, state and local officials.

Russia Wanted Steel.

ONE FACT not generally known about the Charleston, W. Va., naval ordnance plant which President Roosevelt visited this week was that its machinery came near being sold to the Soviet government.

Built during the last World war, the Charleston plant was erected to manufacture armor plate. This is a form of steel normally built by only two plants in the United States, and the navy wanted to keep the Charleston plant for emergencies. For without sufficient armor plate, it is impossible to rush the construction of naval vessels.

However, the Massachusetts Salvage company put in a bid for the Charles plant machinery, and a lot of pressure was put on the Roosevelt administration by various politicians to sell it. The plan was to transport the machinery to Russia where it would help to rebuild the Russian navy.

Since American policy always has favored a strong Russian navy as a quieting influence on Japan, the idea was given careful consideration. Also various American steel manufacturers who did not like the idea of the government being in the steel business, tried to push the sale.

But Lewis Compton, far-sighted assistant secretary of the navy, was opposed. So also was President Roosevelt when the matter was placed before him. So today the Charleston plant, operated under lease to the Illinois-Carnegie company, is turning out rush orders of armor plate, while the National Youth Administration also is using the plant to train apprentice machinists.

Uvalde Calling.

VICE PRESIDENT Jack Garner may return to Washington for the windup of congress a few weeks hence.

He is still undecided, and probably won't make up his mind until the adjournment situation becomes more definite. If he does return, it will be solely to ring down the curtain.

Inside reason for this is a personal feeling regarding the president.

Roosevelt and Garner still are on cordial personal terms. But since the Chicago convention, where he was a complete outsider, Garner has felt that his attendance at cabinet meetings was embarrassing, both to him and the president.

To be in the capital and not attend cabinet sittings, Garner fears, would give rise to reports that he is at odds with Roosevelt. So to avoid any misunderstandings, Garner has remained at his home in Uvalde.

Note—House Democratic Floor Leader Sam Rayburn, old Garner crony who will manage the southwestern headquarters of the Democratic national committee, has hopes of persuading Garner to make one speech in the campaign. In 1932, he made two speeches and in 1936 only one. So far Garner has given no indication that he will do anything.

Under the Dome.

MRS. ED IZAC, wife of southern California's liberal congressman, has a better attendance record than many house members. She hasn't missed a session of the chamber in three years. Other faithful galleryites are the wives of Representatives Kinzer and Tibbott of Pennsylvania, and Tom Ford of California. . . . Representative Arthur W. Mitchell of Chicago, Negro member of the house, is the champion dial-twister of congress. He has nine radios, including one in his car and several in his office. . . . Average age of congressmen is 51, senators 58 years. . . . One house rule that is honored more in the breech than in observance reads, "No member shall disturb another in his speech by whispering, coughing, spitting or hissing, or passing between him and the speaker."

Willkie's Nominator.

WHEN Representative Charles Halleck of Indiana nominated Wendell Willkie at Philadelphia he urged that Willkie's rare talents were needed to steer the ship of state in these perilous times. Now, however, Halleck is not following Willkie's leadership.

In fact neither are any of the other Indiana congressmen—at least when it comes to conscription.

Only Indiana legislator to side with Willkie in favor of conscription is Senator Sherman Minton, ardent Roosevelt supporter and assistant Democratic floor leader.

Note—Two surprise conscription votes in the senate were those of Homer Bone and Lewis Schwellenbach, both of Washington. Schwellenbach, who is leaving the senate for a federal judgeship, voted against the bill, while Bone, a militant isolationist who made a number of hostile speeches during the long debate, voted for the measure. Interesting also was the fact that eight of the 11 Republicans who supported the legislation were easterners. The three exceptions were Gurney of South Dakota, and Holman and McNary of Oregon. In the past the two Oregon senators have always sided with the isolationists.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A story has been going around town about two mysterious Russians who appeared at a small neighborhood theater recently and discovered with dismay that the last showing of Greta Garbo in the Russian drama, "Ninotchka," was just over. They explained to the manager that they were starting back to Russia that very night and were very desirous of seeing the film—so desirous that they ended up by paying $35 to run the film off again right there on the spot, just for them.

We went around for several days thinking what improbable people those Russians were until, by one of those funny little twists of coincidence, we found ourselves in an almost identical situation.

About a week ago we attended the preview of a new picture. We went over to see the picture because it was "Foreign Correspondent" by Alfred Hitchcock, and we think Hitchcock is one of the best cinema directors in the world.

ONE of Hitchcock's fortes is suspense. How he strings it out is his business, strictly. It's a gift. It's the sort of stuff that ties us up into gnawing knots of curiosity. Well, half way through the film one of the central characters is dramatically unmasked as a spy. Just as this happened we noticed that the clock on the wall said four o'clock (have you got a song to go with that?), and as we had an appointment for that hour that couldn't be broken, we grabbed our bonnet and got out of there.

Had we realized the consequences of this action we would have said fooey about appointments. All the way across town, and all through the appointment, which was with an aviator just back from China and which should have been interesting, we kept thinking about that spy. Was he a spy, we wondered. Or was it simply Hitchcock up to his old tricks. Probably it was Hitchcock up to his old tricks. But the afternoon passed, and the evening came, and midnight waned, and we couldn't get the situation out of our mind. It was like Mark Twain's "Punch, Brothers, punch with care . . ."

Breakfast didn't taste very good next morning. Neither did lunch. About 2 o'clock we telephoned the United Artists to find out whether, by chance, another preview might be in the wind.

"Sure is," said Lynn Farnol, "in half an hour." Ten minutes later, hatless and almost breathless, we arrived.

"What about that preview?" we wanted to know. Farnol had gone out.

"It's been cancelled," the man said. "Won't be held until next week."

WELL, what would you have done? We started talking. We explained all, including our tasteless dinners and our sleepless nights. The man said, "Pardon me" and went out, and in a few minutes later he was back again. "If it's the last two reels you want to see we'll run 'em for you," he explained.

We know this sounds silly, but seeing those two reels took all the fatigue and weariness out of our frame; it made everything all right, even the hero, who came out all right in the end. And when the last foot had been shown we got up and walked out of there a new man. That was when we started sympathizing with Russians.

If you see "Foreign Correspondent," see it through. Leaving at the half-way mark isn't worth it.

A Farmer's Diary

Noon at the Fair

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT WAS high noon at the state fair. We had a basket of lunch in the car, parked just outside the north gate. The children were hungry and wanted to buy something to eat at every stand. Instead we hurried north toward our car.

"Other people must be hungry, too," said the girl. "Look at the picnic lunches!" It seemed every other car had a family group about the rear. Chicken, pickles, cake and pie seemed to be the general menu.

We found our car in the parking lot with a thousand others. Picnic dinners were as prevalent here as inside the grounds. While the two children unpacked our lunch I went to a grocery nearby to get a necessary article we had forgotten. On the way I came upon a group that differed from the others—father, mother and two children.

The mother was short, plump and rosy, with dark hair and hazel eyes. The father wore a heavy black beard and a dark broad hat. The girl, of about ten, was dressed much like her mother, in a long dark dress. The boy of eight was eager and full of mischief.

I heard the parents speak to each other in Pennsylvania Dutch, as they unpacked the basket. I understood them well. They spread a clean white tablecloth upon the ground, and put thereon a loaf of home made bread that might have won a prize, a jar of schmeerase mixed with cream, a roll of yellow butter, a dish of apple butter. The man adjusted a camp cook stove on which he began to heat a kettle of sauerkraut and 'speck.' It was by far the most odorous and savory dish I had found that day.

I watched the mother spread a slice of bread with butter, apple butter, and then a layer of schmeerase on the top, and hand it to her active son. Not since I was a boy had I seen that tasty, homey combination.

When the kraut and speck was heated, and everything was on the tablecloth, all sat quietly while the father raised his voice in gentle tones and gave thanks fervently. It was the grandest, most impressive part of all the fair to me.

SHORT STORY SERIES IN NEW LIBRARY BOOK

'Mrs. Miniver' Collection on Shelves This Week; First Published in London.

An interesting collection of story sketches, under the title of "Mrs. Miniver" was added to the shelves at Mansfield Public library this week. Joyce Maxtone Graham (Jan Struthers) is the author of these short stories, first published in the London Times, and since they were not written for American readers, they contain no propaganda.

Harold J. Tobin and Percy W. Bidwell have expounded numerous ideas on how our democracy can use its resources in the event of war in their recent book, "Mobilizing Civilian America."

The new fiction includes:

MRS. MINIVER by Joyce Maxtone Graham (Jan Struthers) is a collection of story sketches in which Mrs. Miniver, a contented, happily-married, middle-class Englishwoman tells with wit and perspicacity her own thoughts and the little happenings of her very nice family, in England, just before the war. These short chapters which originally appeared in the London Times were not written for America and consequently, contain not one word of propaganda. Charming, gay, yet sympathetic, Mrs. Miniver is one of those rare characters in fiction whom readers everywhere will welcome.

MASTER-AT-ARMS, by Rafael Sabatini is a dashing cloak and sword romance of the time of the French revolution. Quentin de Marlaix, the head of a famous fencing school in London, is persuaded by the lovely Germaine de Chesnieres to return to France in an attempt to regain his heritage.

GYPSY, GYPSY by Rumer Godden, author of Black Narcissus, is a character study of Madame Barbe de Longueman, a sadistic middle-aged widow with fox-red hair, a woman who has never ceased to be a cruel child. Set in Normandy, the story of a gypsy family, camped upon the chateau land, and of the havoc Barbe caused, which ended in murder, is told by her niece.

Others on this list:

MIXTURE AS BEFORE by Maugham.

RED CARNATION, Stevenson.

ELM TREE MURDER, Street.

Non-fiction Books:

MOBILIZING CIVILIAN AMERICA by Harold J. Tobin and Percy W. Bidwell is a penetrating study of how our democracy can use its resources most efficiently in the event of war. The authors look back at the last war and its lessons, then describe plans for the control of resources and prices, mobilization of labor and business, and the problems of censorship.

PROLOGUE TO WAR by Elizabeth Wiskemann deals with the internal problems and conflicting ambitions of various small countries east and west of the Rome-Berlin axis, stressing the feverish pressure of Nazi imperialism on them. The book, finished in July 1939, gives excellent historical background for the present European war.

CLARA SCHUMANN by John N. Burk, program annotator of the Boston Symphony orchestra, is a sympathetic biography of the greatest woman pianist of her time. The wife of the composer Robert Schumann, she was also the great friend and inspiration of Johannes Brahms. Music lovers will be especially enthusiastic about the book.

OTHER NON-FICTION: A NEW DESIGN FOR WOMEN'S EDUCATION by Warren; SCHOOLS IN SMALL COMMUNITIES; MODERN EDUCATION IN THE SMALL RURAL SCHOOLS, Wofford; COMMUNITY SCHOOLS IN ACTION, Clapp; AN ATLAS HISTORY OF THE SECOND WORLD WAR, Horrabin; HUNGER AND HISTORY, Prentice; POTTERY CRAFT by Divine and Blachford; ARTISTIC METALWORK, Bick; HOW TO BE A TOP FLIGHT SALESMAN, Spencer; AVIATION GETS DOWN TO EARTH, Hanks; AVIATION BUSINESS, Freudenthal.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Scouts in wartime and a foundling child in colonial times are the subjects for the new books this week in the Children's Room. The war story was written for older boys, but adventurous girls may enjoy it. The other story will interest especially girls above the sixth grade.

WINGED FEET by Gertrude Robinson—Nathan Snow had a blood brother, Squando, who was an Indian. At fifteen they were too young to enlist in Washington's army, but they knew the Maine woods and the ways of the Indians. Therefore, they could carry messages or supplies for the soldiers. When Nathan was captured he could have been punished as a spy if the truth had not made him seem to be innocent.

LITTLING OF GAYWOOD by Edna Turpin—Traders brought Littling to the Gaywood plantation when she was a small baby, too young to speak of the horrors of Indian raids. These raids had made the young woman who had protected her insane and ill so that her story was never told either. The readers will want to learn for themselves who Littling was and why she was only a foundling cared for by the kind plantation household.

THE FIREBALL* DOES IT!

Modern gasolines have high octane ratings to permit higher compressions without "ping." Note how this picture, which can be used only in valve-in-head engines, rolls the fuel charge into the shape of a flattened ball that centers around the new, smaller, racing-car type spark plug. Fired at its very heart, this more highly compressed fuel lets go with such full-forced, "ping-free" wallop that any gasoline of 75 octane rating (now available at standard-fuel prices) may be used in the 115-hp. engine. Any fuel of 80 octane rating serves in the 125- and 165-hp. engines.

"According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, a super meteor which transits with a train of sufficient size like the short tracer of a great projectile is called a "FIREBALL."

Roosevelt Denies New Pacific Air Bases Planned

ASSERTS KNOX ANNOUNCEMENT 'INACCURATE'

Reveals Ecuador and Costa Rica Co-operate With U. S. on Defense.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt revealed today that Costa Rica and Ecuador are offering full cooperation in defense planning for the new world, but denied that the United States is negotiating with either country to establish defense bases on Cocos or Galapagos islands.

There are no negotiations of any nature in progress anywhere for acquisition of additional bases, Mr. Roosevelt said at a press conference.

President Rafael A. Calderon of Costa Rica told the United Press yesterday that his government had offered the United States a long-term lease on naval or air base sites on the Cocos island. He said, however, that Costa Rica had as yet received no reply from Washington for such sites.

Mr. Roosevelt said there was complete understanding between this country, Ecuador and Costa Rica on the necessities which might arise should this hemisphere ever be made the object of aggression.

There is complete cooperation between Costa Rica and the United States in the defense of the Americas, he said, obviously referring to Cocos. Then turning to the Galapagos, Mr. Roosevelt said with equal emphasis that there is no question but that Ecuador is working with the United States on defense matters.

Sources close to Mr Roosevelt said that his surveys of Cocos island established definitely that it is poorly adapted to establishment of a base

The president personally inspected the island on visits to the Panama canal area.

These sources said that while it is ideally located strategically, the fact it possesses no harbors virtually precludes establishment of a naval base and its extreme smallness virtually precludes location of a flying field. The island is only five miles long and about two across. Its rugged surface makes airport construction impossible. The island is surrounded by very deep water and the heavy Pacific groundswell would make it difficult for seaplanes to operate in its surf on a majority of days of any year, it was pointed out.

These same sources said that if Cocos island were used at all for an air base, the planes would have to be based on ships anchored off the island's mountainous coast. Even then they would be able to take off only at occasional periods of the year.

At great cost, some shelter might be provided by constructing small breakwaters, but extreme depth of the water surrounding the island would make establishment of any extensive breakwater impracticable.

Mr. Roosevelt said that dispatches from San Francisco quoting Secretary of Navy Frank Knox as saying that negotiations were in progress for acquisition of bases on Cocos and Galapagos presented a regrettable inaccuracy.

Mr. Roosevelt said it was obvious that the navy would like defenses in the Pacific to strengthen the more distant strategic approaches to the Panama canal, but repeated with emphasis that no negotiations are in progress for acquisition of such bases.

'WE WON'T GO' SAY LONDONERS AFTER BOMBING

Writer Makes Tour of Area Blasted by Shells In German Raid.

By DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON—(AP)—People of the slums walked silently past bombed houses in the stifling heat.

An old man and a young woman, eyes red from weeping, stood outside one house.

"I'm not going to leave, I'm not," the old man kept saying. "I've lived here 59 years I'm not going. They'll steal my clothes."

An air raid warden said helplessly, "I took 'em to a relief-center where they have beds and food. They came right back. They won't leave."

The slums, narrower and noisier than New York's east side, were the first stop of a three-hour tour of areas bombed last night, a tour that covered close to 100 miles and revealed only one bombing that had done military damage. Many others had inflicted damage, but not military.

The old man's house was just a shell of dirty brown stone. A bomb which had landed in the backyard had blown away doors The ceilings had fallen in. Debris a foot deep was piled on the floor Dust covered the walls and pictures, pathetic photographs of weddings and christenings.

"I was in the shelter," the woman said suddenly. "We were there for hours. When we came back we found this Damn them, what have we done?

A fat sun-tanned baby in a carriage started to cry. The woman picked it up and stood looking at the ruined home.

A soldier led a wounded man down the street The man's head was bound and one arm was in a sling.

"Been hurt he has," said the solider. "Wants to see what they done. Wouldn't believe me when I told him they hadn't touched his house."

One bomb had hit the top of an underground shelter in a square. All windows in all houses in the square had been blown out. I could see the women cleaning.

An air raid warden said, "there were 1,500 people inside. Didn't touch a one."

The bomb had ploughed through the earth and concrete and opened a hole two feet square in the top of the shelter.

People in the square looked dazed and tired, all except the kids who tried to shinny over the railings and see the crater

I saw two houses near the square smashed to bits

"They dropped six in 150 yards," a policeman said. "They didn't kill anyone but two young fools standing on top of the shelter."

Shops too poor to buy glass had been boarded up, their fronts chalked with slogans: "Britain for ever, keep smiling" and "The RAF will get em, keep your chin up."

The only damage of military value was in a prosperous residential district where seven bombs had fallen on a suburban station One track had been broken and workmen were mending it.

"Mister, we'll put this right before you can kiss a duck," said one workman.

The next suburb radiated wealth. It looked like Montclair or Lake Forest or Grosse Point. Bombs had demolished a house in one carefully groomed street

A woman came out of the house next door. "They dropped one in the back yard," she said "It knocked me out of bed. I don't have a shelter because I don't like to be cooped up. If I'd been in a shelter I'd be dead"

She turned and ran back up the driveway to a ten-foot crater surrounded by hunks of muddy soil The concussion had blown out the back of the house, covering its high, furnished interior with mud and debris

The woman sighed, "Oh, I just pray and pray night won't come again."

We returned through the slums

A woman was standing near a bombed house She still was in wrapper and curl papers

She talked while the neighbors gaped:

"We was in the shelter when it fell and sat look my John said, Oh my God where's Mrs Simmons"

He rushed out and found her behind that fence there with her baby in her arms and five kids all around her, crying but not even scratched She ran out of the house into the backyard and she here by the house Ain't it the mercy of God"

ELEVATOR JAMS SO CLASS IN FIRST AID HAS TO CRAWL OUT

Members of the Red Cross first aid class, which meets on the fifth floor of the Farmers Bank, barely missed having a chance to practice their art on each other last night.

After the meeting last evening, they jammed into the elevator in the bank building and directed the operator to take them to the first floor Down went the elevator, but when the operator tried to stop at the first floor the elevator refused to respond.

When the contraption finally came to a halt, the occupants found they were somewhere between the first floor and the basement. Controls were jiggled but the elevator refused to budge.

Following a brief council of war, it was suggested that the elevator door be opened to see if the elevator projected enough over the first floor to allow an opening large enough to crawl through. The door was opened and, sure enough, there was a small open space at the top of the elevator.

After much pulling and pushing all occupants reached the first floor.

TO STAY FAIR

Weather Predictions Are For Continued Balmy Weather.

Cooling breezes brought relief from the September sun today and continued fair weather was predicted for at least another day.

After dropping to 50 last night the mercury rose to 78 this noon, two degrees below yesterday's high of 80

The forecast said it would be fair tonight and Saturday with little change in temperature. The average for the past 24 hours was 65 four degrees below normal.

$100,000 FIRE

Six Buildings of Chemical Company Destroyed.

READING, Pa. —(INS)— Fed by exploding paints and chemicals, a three-hour fire today destroyed six buildings of the Allegheny Chemical company at nearby Womelsdorf with a loss of $100,000.

Four hundred fifty volunteer firemen from seven communities battled vainly as flames spread from building to building. The ruined structures were combination brick and frame workhouses from one to two and a half stories in height.

Company officials, who estimate damage to paint and insecticide supplies at $100,000, were unable to determine origin of the blaze immediately. Only two men were in the plant at the time. Fire officials reported no one was injured.

American residential building passed the billion-dollar mark in 1939 for the first time since 1930.

GRAND JURY CALLED TO PROBE DOG RACE TRACK OPERATIONS

RAVENNA—(UP)—At the request of a representative of Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, Common Pleas Judge Carl H Curtiss summoned a special Portage county grand jury today to investigate alleged gambling at two dog race tracks.

Simon L. Leis, special investigator appointed by Herbert yesterday, asked for the jury call after operators of the two tracks at Lake Milton and Brimfield refused to close at his request

Drawing of the panel of 15 jurors began immediately and the jury was expected to begin work early next week.

It was reported that operators of the tracks may shut down voluntarily before the jury acts in order to forestall confiscation of their equipment. Only a few weeks are left of the summer racing season. The tracks have operated for several weeks.

Slot machines were reported in operation at one track.

Deputy Sheriff Rohan Fitzgerald, brother of Sheriff Robert Fitzgerald, visited the Brimfield track last night and ordered the betting booths closed. After a short delay, the first of 11 scheduled races was run without betting.

The deputy then departed and the remaining 10 races were said to have been held with pari-mutuel betting windows in operation

Sheriff Fitzgerald said he would have closed the tracks had he received any complaints against them.

"They are operating the same as the horse tracks which are legal and are giving jobs to lots of men," he said.

Governor John W. Bricker yesterday authorized Herbert to ask for a grand jury inquiry into many complaints received at the state house about alleged law violations at the two tracks—only ones operating in Ohio.

WILLKIE FAVORS INDUSTRY DRAFT IN EMERGENCIES

Hits Senate Amendment For Power Placed at One Man's Caprice.

(By Associated Press)

RUSHVILLE, Ind.—Wendell L. Willkie is on record as favoring a "selective service" program for government operation of American industries during emergencies.

After a meeting with party leaders which he described as harmonious and optimistic, the Republican presidential nominee told reporters late yesterday:

"Under the Overton-Russell amendment which the senate adopted to the military selective service bill, industries could be seized by the government because of the caprice of one man.

"If a bill were introduced providing that in case of emergencies industries should be selected—just as in the case of men for the army—and taken over by the government under rules and regulations instead of the arbitrary act of one man, I would be for it."

Willkie, seated in a pergola in a neighbor's garden, said he had not seen the exact language of a proposed house modification of the Overton-Russell amendment. The latter would permit the president to direct the institution of condemnation proceedings against defense "facilities" by the war or navy department after the departments had certified that they had been unable to reach an agreement with the plant's owners. The amendment also would authorize the government to operate such a plant while the proceedings were pending.

In any legislation affecting government operation of industry, the nominee said, there should be "a specific provision prohibiting the conscription of men for industry."

Willkie's luncheon conference yesterday with Republican national committeemen, committeewomen and state chairmen from the east and midwest marked the formal opening of the party organization's campaign.

Any sign of friction between Republican groups and Willkie-for-president clubs, he said, had disappeared

Talks On Beauty of Mohican State Park Near City

Capt. James Stevenson, officer in charge of Mohican State park, urged further expansion and beautification of Mohican park in a speech before Kiwanis club Thursday noon at the Mansfield Leland hotel.

"The possibilities of making it one of the most beautiful parks in the country are there," he told Kiwanians.

"Tourists from all over the country have remarked on the beauty of the park and have wondered why people from this part of the country have bothered to travel to other parts to view scenic beauty," he said.

Stevenson also urged Kiwanians to get acquainted with the park and take up the study of plant and bird life. Capt. Stevenson was introduced by Charles Harding, chairman of the meeting yesterday.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour 2 pints of bile juice into your bowels every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Then gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get three 2 pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Get a package today. Take as directed. Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. 10c and 25c.

Informally Speaking...

BETTY JANE YUNKER'S vacation this summer proved to be the happiest and most exciting one of her life—because as a climax she received a beautiful diamond engagement ring. . . . During the first week of her vacation, Betty Jane and her mother, Mrs. Homer Chandler, went to New York City and the World fair, and then the second week she relaxed at her family's cottage down at Buckeye lake. . . . But, of course, the engagement ring was the most important thing about it all. . . . She received it from Robert L. Boyd of Newark—so be sure to look for it next time you meet Betty Jane, as it's such a lovely ring I know you won't want to miss seeing it.

It's always exciting for any girl to go back to college, but Jeanette Isaly's trip south to Columbia, Mo. (where she will be a second year student at Stephens college) was especially breath-taking this year. . . . She flew down in a private plane, piloted by Charles Silsby, from Mansfield airport.

Mrs. Rose Hedges and her sister, Mrs. Nell Sigman, left this morning for Liberty Mills, Ind., to visit with friends. . . . From there, Mrs. Sigman, who has been a guest here at Mrs. Hedges' home for the past three months, will go on to her own home in Dubuque, Ia. . . . Mrs. Hedges is planning to return east in about three weeks. . . . Some other folks who left town this morning were Mrs. Rollie Huffman, Mrs. Virgil Kennedy, Mrs. R. R. Kennedy and Mr. and Mrs. Read Banks. . . . They've gone to the Naval Training station at Great Lakes, Ill., to spend the week-end with Mrs. Huffman's son, Paul, and Mrs. Virgil Kennedy's son, Raymond Spicer, who are in training there.

Everyone who ever frequented the Mansfield Public library knew Carolyn Chamberlain, who worked there. . . . She became the bride of Harold Haupert earlier this year, you know, and moved to South Bend, Ind., to make her home. . . . Well, perhaps you'll be able to catch a glimpse of her now, as she's here for a two-weeks' stay with her mother, Mrs. F. A. Chamberlain, at the family country home near Mifflin.

WE DIDN'T get to see much of Barbara Kerr this summer as her visits to the city were all too few. . . . A junior at Northwestern university she came home for a short time following the close of classes in June, and then went back a little later for the summer school session. . . . And now she's been here only for a few weeks at the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Kerr, and already this morning she left for Evanston—for although classes won't start for another two weeks, sorority rushing parties will begin right away, so of course, Barbara wants to be there for the activities of her group (Chi Omega).

Even though she's a resident of our town only in the summertime, Marilyn Miller is a popular member of the younger social set. . . . She's been spending her summer vacations here with her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Stevens, ever since she was a youngster, and so this summer was no exception. . . . Marilyn was graduated from high school in Akron this June, and she's leaving next week for Cleveland, where she will enroll at Flora Stone Mather college of Western Reserve university. . . . Virginia Mary Rupp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Rupp, also will be going up to Cleveland soon—as she's a sophomore at Flora Stone Mather this year. . . . Heading eastward tomorrow will be Warren Bradford to enroll as a first year engineering student at Lehigh university in Bethlehem, Pa. . . . He's the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bradford.

MORE FLARES IN GLOVES

American glove manufacturers are becoming more and more generous in their use of leather. Some of the new gloves are being made with dramatically flared cuffs in 8-button and longer lengths. This gauntlet effect often requires one entire skin for each glove but produces so much glamor that the extravagance is entirely justified.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I just told Lil that there appeared to be something weighing down the well-known mind," Katherine said with a gamin grin at me, while Lillian gave voice to one of her characteristic throaty chuckles. "So we're here,"—they ranged themselves on either side of me, each grasping one of my hands—"to hold up the hands of Aaron in the wilderness, as long as they need to be stretched aloft."

They raised my hands high in the air, and, as they twitched them down again, I laughed with the easing of tension which their foolery and the knowledge of stanch comradeship behind it, always bring to me.

"Aaron welcomes you," I told them fervently, conscious that both of them were furtively studying my face, "He sure needs your counsel."

"Then we'll go into executive session at once," Katherine said, and drawing up chairs they sat down close to me.

"Are we correct in 'dee-doocing'," Lillian asked, "that old Phil Veritzen is the particular blue-bottle fly in your especial ointment this afternoon?"

I threw up my right hand in salute to their astuteness.

"Trot right to the head of the class, both of you," I told them. "He's coming to the farmhouse with Otto on my father's invitation, and his own camouflaged request, to stay for the remainder of this siege."

"My sainted aunt's mother-in-law!" Lillian exclaimed. "Where are you going to put him?"

"I haven't the slightest idea," I said, "except that Father says—"

But Lillian had not waited for my answer. She was outlining with gusto the impracticability of the comfortable housing of Philip Veritzen.

"The farmhouse is elastic, I grant you," she said, "as has been proven times without number. But it's crammed to overflowing now, and I don't see where you're going to get an extra person in with a shoe horn."

"Neither do I," I said dolefully.

"And that old buzzard sure loves his creature comforts," she commented, and I wondered if I imagined a note of mischievous glee at her fastidious old friend's probable dilemma.

We were all silent for an instant, and then I thought of the solution of the problem my father had offered.

"Father says."—I spoke hesitantly—"that Mr. Veritzen and Otto will have to take pot luck with the rest of the men, stand their turns in watching during the night, and sleep where they can."

Two derisive hoots greeted this solution, and then Lillian spoke with a ludicrous assumption of solemnity.

"Your father," she pronounced, "is an incurable optimist."

"Not about Otto," Katherine interposed hurriedly.

"No, he's a stout fella," Lillian admitted, "and after working for Phil Veritzen as long as he has, he, in all probablity can sleep standing up, or propped up on his right ear. But while Old Phil's heart and his courage are all right, his muscles are flabby, and he likes his privacy when sleeping. Can you imagine him bedding himself down on a cot, ready for reveille at any hour?"

"No, I can't," I said with emphasis, and Katherine grinned widely at me.

"You forget," she said, "that the gentleman has an incentive to make him endure any hardships. His liege lady, his 'qveen," in Katie's vernacular, is in the house."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

BY Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

NOT A FANCY PLAY

JUST AS you tell your partner, by a high card in normal situations, that you want a suit repeated, and by a low card that you do not, so you give equally logical messages in other kinds of situations. If it is perfectly clear, to every player at the table, that your partner will shift on the next trick to one of the other two side suits, you should tell him which you prefer. If you favor the higher ranking one, such as diamonds instead of clubs, you play a high card on his spade trick. If you do not, you play your smallest, thereby indicating likely preference for the lower. There is nothing fancy about this, just plain common sense.

(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	1 ♠	3 ♥	3 ♠
4 ♣	4 ♠	6 ♥	Dbl

West led his spade K, and of course saw that he must shift to one of the two minor suits. Shifting to hearts would be out of the question, since that would insure South's ability to run off the trumps and then tackle whichever minor he preferred—the one in which he held the ace, as he almost surely would do in one of them, in view of his bidding.

West's double, after he saw the dummy, was dependent for its soundness upon whether or not his partner held the ace in one of the two minors. So he made a guess. He guessed diamonds, and as a consequence, the declarer took the rest of the tricks. If he had led a club to the second trick, the contract would have been beaten.

When the hand was all over, West bemoaned his hard luck, or at least began to. But East broke in and called him unobservant or unthinking. If East held one of the aces, and it was in the higher of the two side suits, diamonds, he would have played a high card on the spade K, or at least he said so. Consequently, when he put the spade 2 on the first trick, it meant he did not want a diamond lead. The only remaining side suit was clubs, and therefore West should have led it.

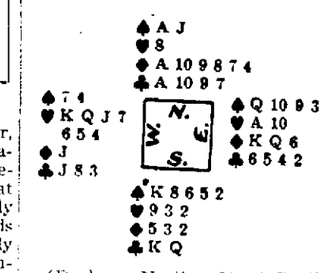
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

What bidding would you recommend on this hand, if you as South considered your opponents extremely weak defensive players, in order to try to steal a game?

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, September 7.

Substantial returns may be expected on this day in token of sound and stable ventures developed by steadfastness, prudence, persistence and hard work. The "fruit of works" should be demonstrated by advancement and solid support from superiors, old-established institutions and those in authority.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may look forward to a year in which there will be substantial recognition and rewards for earnest past labors, fidelity and sterling character. This may be attended by some drastic activity, surprising and exciting moments, in which elders, superiors and old institutions or organizations may figure, but be not carried away in possible upheavals to the point of eccentric behavior.

A child born on this day should be richly endowed for success and happiness in life, achieving place and power by its own sterling qualities, splendid mental abilities and gracious personality.

Davey Revives Sales Tax Repeal As Campaign Issue

WANTS PLANK INCLUDED IN DEM PLATFORM

Advocates Commission Study of Entire Tax System For Revision.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Proposed repeal of the sales tax was revived as a dominant sales talk for Ohio Democrats today as they opened their biennial state platform convention.

Martin L. Davey, their candidate for governor, recommended that the platform call for repeal.

He was confident, too, that the 1,000 delegates would approve a plank advocating a guaranteed monthly income of $40, minus other income, for the aged in line with his promises to old-age pensioners.

The former governor first advocated repeal of the sales tax last winter as he entered the primary campaign, but had been so quiet on the subject since then that political observers wondered if he had abandoned the proposal.

Asked how he would replace the approximately $10,000,000 a year income from the three per cent levy, Davey told newspaper men that a commission should be created to study the state's entire tax system and recommended a revision.

He termed the tax "obnoxious" and too expensive to collect, asserting that 7 per cent of the income was used to finance its administration. The sales tax was levied in 1935, an off-spring of the administration of former Gov. George White, a Democrat. Stephen M. Young of Cleveland, now a Democratic candidate for congressman-at-large, recommended its repeal in 1936.

At the time Young was opposing Davey for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, and Davey said:

"Once in a while a demagogue rises up and demands repeal of the sales tax and offers nothing in its place. There is no way to explain the mind of a demagogue except that he is for anything or against anything that will get him some votes."

Davey will speak at tomorrow afternoon's closing session after adoption of the platform and selection of presidential electors.

Republicans Hit At Davey Record

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Two Republican leaders attacked the party and governmental record of former Gov. Martin L. Davey, Democratic gubernatorial nominee, as he arrived here today for the Democratic state convention.

Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert described Davey as a "Judas to your own party" and claimed that Davey in 1938 instructed state employes to "knife" Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati, the nominee for governor in that year.

He recalled that Davey had criticized national party leaders, including President Roosevelt and inquired how he could expect support from prominent Democrats "whom you have vilified, scandalized and abused."

State Highway Director Robert S. Beightler got into the fray in answer to Davey charges that highways had been neglected under the Bricker administration.

Psychiatrists Study Mind of Brother Slayer

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.—(NS)—With the help of psychiatrists police today sought to unravel the strange workings of the mind of 17-year-old Mary Wolf who confessed fatally shooting her nine-year-old brother, Frederick, "on a sudden impulse."

Mary showed little remorse, police said. They sought what they termed a more plausible motive for the killing.

Mary said she fired a .22 calibre rifle bullet into Frederick's head as he slept "to see what would happen."

'Doodlebug' Engineer Learns 43 Killed

FAMILY CENSOR MISSES STORY IN NEWSPAPER

News of Disaster Had Been Kept From Murtaugh For Five Weeks.

(By Associated Press)

AKRON, O.—The close "censorship" the family of Thomas Murtaugh had imposed on newspapers coming into the home slipped today and the engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad's ill-fated "Doodlebug" learned the staggering news that 43 persons died violently in the July crash.

It was the first hint the engineman had that anyone besides himself and Conductor Harry Shafer had been injured in a collision that ranks with the worst in Ohio's railroad history.

News of the disaster had been carefully shielded from him during his five weeks of convalescence

A chance item about the disaster—overlooked by the family in their close check of newspapers—came to the engineer's attention within the past few days, it was learned at his home this morning.

His family would not say how he withstood the impact of full knowledge that more than two-score men, women and children had died in the flaming wreckage of his coach more than a month ago.

Murtaugh suffered a skull fracture in the crash. He has been at his home in Orrville convalescing since his release from City hospital over a week ago. Shafer, who lost an arm and leg in the crash, is still under treatment. The third survivor, Todd Wonn, a railroad employe who jumped from the coach seconds before it rammed into a speeding freight locomotive at Cuyahoga Falls, was not seriously injured.

Murtaugh told Pennsylvania officials during questioning in his hospital room that he set the air brakes, turned on the sand and jumped when he saw the onrushing freight. Although he recalled clearly orders to take siding at Silver Lake and let the freight pass, Murtaugh told officials that his mind had been a blank as far as reaching and passing the siding was concerned.

Up and Down the Street

Their challenge to the police department to meet them in a three-inning ball game Sept. 19 at the annual city employes' picnic at North Lake park unanswered, city councilmen today boasted that they were "too tough" for the younger officers. George Berg, who is lining up the council nine declared that "the cops shouldn't be afraid to tackle us. They have the alternative of arresting the umpires if they shouldn't call 'em right."

A neighbor of Atty. William F. Black cleared up a mystery for him yesterday, and it was all just by accident. Working on a probate court case, Atty. Black complained that his hay fever was worse again and he couldn't figure it out. "No wonder," his neighbor said, "you've got a lot of golden rod blooming just outside your window at home." Pondering a moment, Atty. Black exclaimed, "So that's what those yellow flowers are."

Elks club members today were singing praises of their custodian, Frank May. Every year the elk statue on the front lawn of the club is given a coat of paint, but this year May went a few steps beyond the usual procedure of giving it a straight coat of brown paint. As an added artistic touch, May painted the base of the statue a grass green and added a touch of red at the elk's nostrils. The rest of the elk is painted in the usual brown.

SAILORS WAIT FOR WAR'S END

French, Italian Tars Twiddle Thumbs as Their Ships Ride at Anchor.

NEW ORLEANS —(U.P.)— Four French and two Italian ships ride at anchor in the Mississippi river near Chamette and their 230 seamen twiddle their thumbs waiting for the war to end.

Backwash of the big struggle across the Atlantic, the belligerent steamers can't move from their anchorage. Their radios are sealed and their crews are barred by immigration laws from going ashore in New Orleans.

The French sailors are better fed, por: authorities say, but they are restless. The Italians, on the other hand, make a picnic of the enforced layoff.

There's plenty to eat and drink aboard the vessels. A sample meal aboard a French ship consists of steak, fried potatoes, lettuce and tomato salad and an assortment of desserts, besides coffee, butter and wine. French sailors get half a gallon of wine a day. Cigarets and pipe tobacco are passed around after each meal.

The Italians don't eat with quite the same eclat. They sit on deck, drink wine from the bottle, and eat a mixture of meat, rice, gravy and lettuce.

BARN DESTROYED BY FLAMES ADDS TO BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

CRESTLINE — Birthday surprises came thick and fast yesterday for Fred Voegele, one mile south of here, and not all of them were pleasant. They included a party given by 30 relatives, and a fire which destroyed a grain-packed barn causing a loss of several thousand dollars.

Flames of undetermined origin broke out about 4:30 yesterday afternoon, and had gained considerable headway before the Crestline fire department arrived.

Firemen fought the blaze nearly eight hours before bringing it under control. Pumping water from a nearby creek, they saved a tenant house about 150 feet from the barn. Furniture of the tenants, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jacobs, was first removed from the building.

Summer crops stored in the barn included a large mow full of hay, 100 bushels of wheat, and 100 bushels of oates. Nearby a crib full of corn and a large straw stack were destroyed. Farm machinery stored in the barn several days earlier was lost in flames.

The loss was partially covered by insurance.

The surprise party given by Voegele's relatives fortunately occurred the evening before his anniversary and wasn't spoiled by the fire. During an evening of cards games, Voegele was presented with a gift by his guests.

HEARING ENDS

NLRB Completes Testimony In Dominion Electric Case.

Hearing of a National Labor Relations board case involving 18 tool makers at the Dominion electric company, Mansfield, had been completed today, but a ruling will not be prepared until the board studies the testimony at Washington.

Witnesses for the International Association of Machinists, representing the tool makers, and the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, a CIO union, were heard by Examiner Max Johnstone of Cleveland at the Richland county courthouse.

The tool makers are seeking exclusive bargaining rights for themselves with the Dominion company, while the UERW, the CIO union, contested the action. The UERW is now the sole bargaining agent for workers at the Dominion plant, but its contract with the firm expires soon.

Brief Conversation in the Powder Room of the Stork: A slender blond with straight yellow hair hanging to her shoulders stands at the mirror powdering her nose beside an almost as slender blond with straight yellow hair hanging almost to her shoulders.

"This," says the first blond, "is Joan Stone. She's going to be a great actress. George and Dick and I discovered her in summer stock. This is her first trip to New York. On the train coming in, she cried—and I cried, too."
